Britain Orders Conscription of All Resources

Parliament Passes Dictatorial Bill In Record Time; King Gets Full Control Over Manpower and Material Wealth.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—The inner iron railings of London's famous Hyde park were being turned into munitions today.

By NEWELL ROGERS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

LONDON—In the record time of less than two and a half hours, a bill was passed today and enacted into law conscripting the entire manpower and material resources of Great Britain in the battle against Nazi Germany.

The bill empowers King George to take over the services of every person within the United Kingdom as well as his or her property in defense of the country.

The bill was sped through commons in less than an hour, lords passed it within a half-hour, and immediately royal assent was granted, all within two and a half hours after introduction of the measure in the house of commons.

Announcement of this move, taken "not in a spirit of panic" but because of the "grave peril" threatening the country, was made in the house of commons by Major Richard Attlee, lord privy seal.

It is necessary that the government should give complete control over all persons and property," he said.

"The whole resources of the country must be thrown into the struggle."

"The present situation is so critical," Attlee said, "that the government is compelled to seek special powers.

"The situation is grave. Every member is fully aware of the issues at stake.

"Great battles are now proceeding. Our men at sea, on land and in the air are fighting with splendid courage, devotion and skill.

"The result of the battle cannot be known, but it must be clear to all that the next few weeks will be critical.

"Our ruthless enemy is throwing everything into the scale to force a victory. But we are resolved that they shall not succeed.

"The government is convinced that now is the time when it must mobilize the whole resources of the country. We must throw all our weight into the struggle.

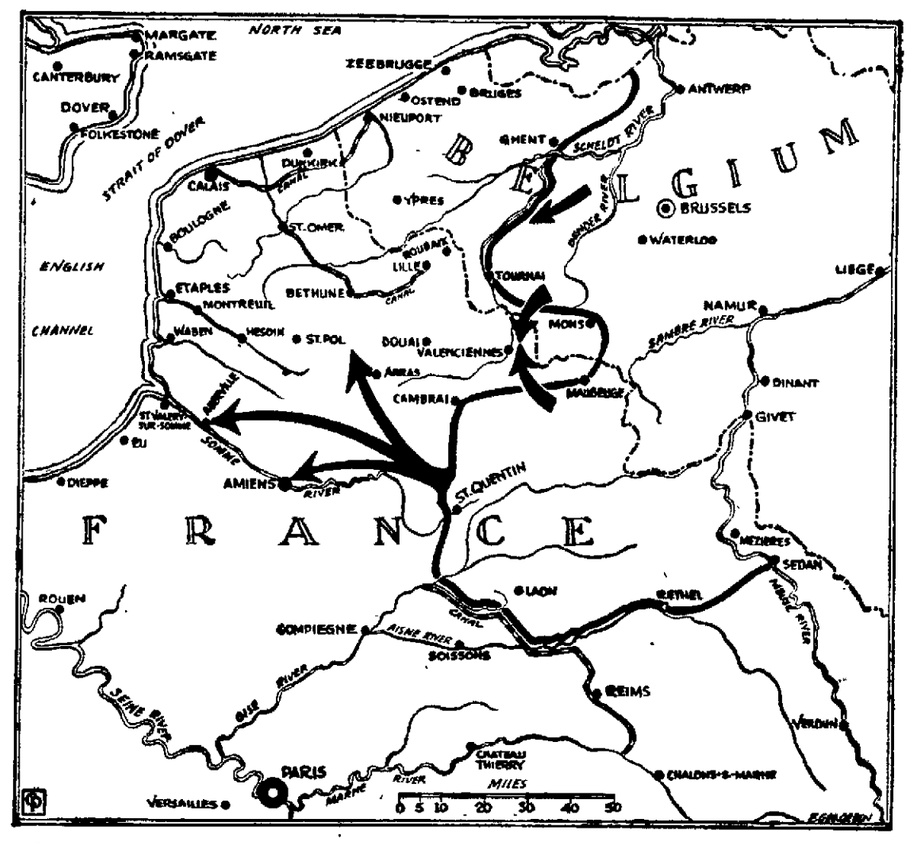
How Germans Cut Off French, British Armies



This map shows how the high-speed mechanized German armies have cut the Allies in two. The three arrows driving northwestward show how the German thrust toward the English channel via Abbeville has isolated British troops in western Belgium and northeastern France from other Allied units. A pincers movement of Germans thrusting simultaneously from north and south is reported to have succeeded in encircling 35 French divisions (700,000 men) in a salient north and southeast of Valenciennes.

RENEW DRIVE ON PARIS

Advance Forces Reported Near Soisson, 56 Miles North And East of Capital.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN — Germany's advancing legions spread northwestward through a gap in the Allied defenses today in the direction of the narrowest neck of the English channel while Nazi airmen bombed the ports where British forces might embark.

Another German force swelled out its "bulge" into northern France at the same time, informed circles said, with a swift southwestward drive toward Paris which may have passed through or around Soissons, World war battlefield only about 56 miles northeast of the capital.

The Nazi drive toward the channel was pointed toward St. Pol and Montreuil-Mer, a line toward the Straits of Dover where only 22 miles of water separate the British Isles from France.

Ahead of it roared German warplanes, the high command reported, bombing the waterfronts of Ostend, Dunkerque, Boulogne and Dieppe the chief ports behind

Destroys All Bridges Across Somme River to Delay Nazi Advance Toward Paris; Battle at Abbeville Rages.

BULLETIN

PARIS—(AP)—The French announced today that German advance guards had been driven from Abbeville, vital town at the mouth of the Somme river, 12 miles from the English channel, as they launched a fierce counter attack to relieve German pressure on the Allied forces threatened with isolation in the big Nazi push.

(By Associated Press)

PARIS—French forces, spurred on by the confident words of Gen. Maxime Weygand, the new Allied land generalissimo, reported today they had pushed German troops out of Arras and fought them at Abbeville Station in a dogged attempt to block the relentless Nazi drive towards the sea.

General Weygand, returning from the front, told Premier Reynaud:

"I am full of confidence if each man does his duty with a fierce energy."

The French, in their fierce counter-action to relieve pressure on the Allied forces threatened with isolation in the German push, destroyed all bridges across the Somme river, and a military spokesman said the enemy would have to bring up much heavier forces than they seem to have if they intended to cross that stream, roughly 70 miles north of Paris.

It was the failure of the French to destroy the River Meuse bridges, Premier Reynaud said yesterday, which permitted the Germans to advance so rapidly into France.

Premier Reynaud, after his gloomy speech of yesterday, declared today that if France can hold out for one month she will be "three quarters of the way to victory." And France will hold out, he added.

The Germans asserted yesterday they had seized Abbeville, Arras and Amiens in their drive to control the important English channel ports. The French

ROME—(AP)—Italian newspapers pointed out today—on the first anniversary of the Rome-Berlin military pact—that the alliance had served to hold British warships in the Mediterranean and French army divisions along the Italian frontier while the Nazis were striking at the western Allies.

The paper hinted that Italy had important gains in store as her reward for this aid, under the pact signed a year ago today.

Amid persistent talk of an Italian war move soon, secret activity of Germany and Italy as part of the alliance was indicated in Fascist circles.

The newspaper Il Piccolo, listing known developments under this alliance, said "others will be known at a more opportune time."

Plane Builder Blames Army for Aerial Mess

Boeing Executive Says Air Corps Quit Buying Modern Battle Weapons Nearly 20 Years Ago.

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
(INS Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—American fighting airplanes today lack the two most vital modern battle weapons—self-sealing gas tanks and armor-plating—because the army air corps quit buying them during the 1920's.

Builders were turning out planes by the hundred with both these improvements years ago, when the air corps suddenly began leaving them out of specifications.

This was revealed today by Philip D. Johnson, president of the Boeing Aircraft company, which was making army planes in 1922. His disclosures came as hundreds of millions of dollars in appropriations were rushed through congress to substitute a new air force for one made obsolete, in the words of the army high command, primarily by absence of these two protective items.

"We built 200 planes with self-sealing tanks in 1922," said Johnson. "This equipment later was left out of army air corps specifications. We built planes with armor plated engines and cockpits early in the twenties—attack planes mostly. This equipment later was left out of army air corps specifications."

Johnson said that he could not explain why the air corps stopped buying the leak-proof tanks and armor-plating, unless it was a question of costs, and then pointed out that now this government was faced with the problem of virtually replacing the entire air force to obtain the vital improvements.

The Boeing president was one

W. 4TH PAVING FAILS AGAIN

Legislation Rejected by 6 To 1 Vote, Mayor to Call New Session.

Failure to pass by a single vote last night at a special meeting, legislation to end the controversy over the type of paving to be laid on West Fourth street will come before city council for a second time, probably tomorrow night.

A measure permitting the state to proceed with paving of the street from North Diamond street to a point just east of Ausdale avenue was killed last night by a vote of 6 to 1.

With only seven members present, George Kyle, Third Ward legislator in whose ward the improvement is proposed, cast the lone dissenting ballot which left the vote one short of the necessary three-fourth majority for passage.

Second Ward Councilman C. N. Schultz, who was said to have favored the legislation, was out of the city.

With Schultz expected back today, Mayor William J. Locke said

WASHINGTON — The government called on capital and labor to "do their bit" today in the national preparedness drive, relying on both to seek no advantages from the rearmament program.

At the same time President Roosevelt counselled against jettisoning the New Deal's social and labor legislation under the pressure of defense considerations.

The chief executive enunciated this position to reporters yesterday, underlining the urgency of preparedness by telling them that

MISSING 5 DAYS

Wife Asks Sheriff to Search For Butler Father of Two.

The belief that James Cocklin, 25, of Butler, who has been missing since last Friday, had "just walked away and would come back when he got ready" was expressed by Sheriff E. P. Long today.

Cocklin, married and the father of two small children, disappeared last Friday and has not been seen since, Long said.

His wife said that he had driven to Mansfield early Friday morning to report for work in an industrial plant here and had never returned. Long found that the man had punched the time clock at the regular time, but a short time later had checked out, taking his work card with him.

The sheriff's office broadcast a description of Cocklin and asked police of other cities and state patrolmen to watch for him. He was driving a 1932 automobile when he left.

STILL UP THERE

Mercury Reaches 81 After Setting High for Year.

Predicted cooler temperatures brought the thermometer down only two degrees today and at noon it was 81 degrees. The highest temperature of the year was reached yesterday when the official thermometer recorded 83, one point higher than the 82 of May 14.

But only the crabbiest persons protested that it was "too hot"—remembering the prolonged winter that "blitzkrieged" spring for weeks.

The average temperature for the past 24 hour period was 65.5, five degrees higher than the average for the past 15 years. Showers predicted for last night failed to materialize around Mansfield but there was a brief downpour in various points near here.

Cloudy skies and cooler temperatures were predicted for tonight and tomorrow.

Army Recruiters Attempt to Sell Service to Youth

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Uncle Sam's talent scouts went into the pool rooms, post offices and other hangouts of young men today in search of candidates for the army.

Uniformed recruiting officers will try to "sell" the army to eligible men, aged 18 to 35, in a campaign of the Fifth corps area to enlist 1,312 new soldiers by June 30.

Activities of the Fifth corps area in this largest peacetime recruiting campaign, which opened yesterday, cover four states: Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and West Virginia.

Use of newspapers, the radio and motion pictures on an unprecedented scale is involved.

Captain E. R. Keller, Cincinnati reserve officer in charge of recruiting campaign promotion, promised promotion and more pay for recruits.

START OILING

City Begins Job of Settling Dust on Unpaved Streets.

Oiling of approximately 25 miles of unpaved streets and alleys, a project constituting the major part of the annual summer street maintenance program was started this morning.

Superintendent of streets, Charles Hebel said application of the oil was started by the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company in the Fourth Ward.

The treatment process will be extended into the Third Ward and equipment will then move to the Second Ward, Hebel said. The First, Sixth and Fifth wards will be covered in that respective order.

The paving company has the contract for applying the oil at .543 of a cent per gallon. This is slightly less than was paid for the oil in 1939 when 65,000 gallons were used. Total cost last year was $8,110.

Ohio Valley Flood Control Projects In Danger.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An almost certain presidential veto was believed today to await the $191,000,000 flood control bill, including several projects for the Ohio valley, if the measure passes congress.

Roosevelt Asks Department Of Justice Control Aliens

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt asked congress today to approve transfer of the immigration and naturalization service from the labor to the justice department, thereby to enable the government to "deal quickly" with aliens whose conduct "conflicts with the public interest."

"The startling sequence of international events," Mr. Roosevelt said in a message, "has necessitated a review of the measures required for the nation's safety."

This review he said, disclosed a "pressing need" for the suggested transfer.

Mr. Roosevelt said that although the plan was designed "to afford more effective control over aliens," it did not reflect any intention "to deprive them of their civil liberties or otherwise to impair their legal status."

Paris Civilians Leave City As Refugees Pour Into It

(By United Press)

PARIS—Civilians began leaving Paris today.

Their departure was calm and orderly.

Only a few were leaving now—the timid and unattached. They had definite goals—properties in the country and in small Normandy towns.

Premier Paul Reynaud's announcement that the Germans had taken Amiens, 65 miles north of Paris, had started them off. If and when the Germans drew closer, the movement was destined to grow. In these days of blitzkrieg, it might even become a panic.

But for the moment, refugees pouring into Paris far outnumbered those leaving.

Railroad stations labored under a two-way stream of humanity—Belgians pouring in and Parisians leaving.

Most of the Parisians said they were only going to the country "until the situation is cleared up." They were supremely confident of an Allied victory.

Many wives and children went under protest. They wanted to stay with husbands and fathers who must remain on their jobs. Government and municipal functionaries are obliged to remain at their posts under severest penalty, including death.

Republicans Vote Today on Schorr State Leadership

BURTON HEADS MOVEMENT TO OUST VETERAN

Chairman's Primary Activities Resented by Candidates Whom He Opposed.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — The Republican state central committee meets today to plan the summer and fall campaign and to determine if State Chairman Ed D. Schorr shall retain that post for another two years despite his opposition to four successful candidates for nomination at the primary election.

The outcome will remain in doubt until the ballots are counted, but it was believed that Schorr, even in the face of some open hostility had a good chance of victory.

Principal opposition against him for re-election to the office which he has held for 10 years was expected to come from Mayor Harold H. Burton, Cleveland, the nominee for United States senator, whose defeat Schorr sought in favoring Rep. Dudley A. White, Norwalk.

It was believed that the chairman would not have summoned the committee into session today—he could have delayed until May 29—had he not felt fairly confident of support from a majority of its members. Furthermore, Governor Bricker has indicated that he would not take a part in an effort to unseat Schorr.

There are 44 members of the state central committee, two from each of the state's 22 congressional districts. Of the total number, 16 are new, all having been elected or re-elected at the primaries.

Burton will not be present at the meeting, but has authorized Miles Evans, Cleveland city service director, and a committee member, to present his views on Schorr's continued chairmanship.

The mayor talked politics with Governor Bricker again yesterday, but the governor has previously said that Schorr was satisfactory to him and that in any case he had never tried to "dominate" election of either a county or a state chairman.

Burton also has discussed the matter with Joseph A. Tracy, former state auditor and a successful candidate for that nomination in the primaries in the face of Schorr's opposition.

Besides Burton and Tracy, Schorr also opposed the nominations of Clinton D. Boyd, Middletown, for the state supreme court and Edward J. Hummel, Cincinnati, for secretary of state. In the latter instance, however, he had the entire organization with him in opposition to Hummel and in favor of Secretary of State George Neffner, unsuccessful "write-in" candidate.

Burton's only statement regarding the chairmanship was that "whatever I have to say to the committee about Mr. Schorr will be delivered as coming from me, by Mr. Evans, my service director." Evans was expected to see the governor as Burton's representative before the meeting convenes.

The mayor's earlier announced decision to maintain his campaign headquarters in Cleveland apart from Republican state headquarters here has been modified to the extent that he will have an office in Columbus also with a representative assigned to Republican headquarters to look after his interests.

Conductor's Loss Of False Teeth Delays Fast Train

CRESTLINE—A Big Four railway conductor of Cleveland today had recovered what is believed to be the only set of false teeth in the world ever to hold up a fast freight train for 15 minutes.

Last Saturday evening the conductor was on a fast freight en route from Cleveland to St. Louis. Several miles outside of this city he became nauseated and went to the caboose platform for air. As he gasped his false teeth fell out.

He immediately stopped the train and went back to look for his synthetic molars but a 15-minute search failed to find them.

At the next stop (Galion) he sent back a message to the Crestline telegrapher, asking him to have the section crew look for them, but the next day was Sunday and the section crew wasn't working and Big Four officials didn't believe the situation serious enough to call out a special shift.

The telegrapher felt so sorry for the toothless conductor that he got up at daybreak, went out by himself to the place where the conductor believed he had lost them, and actually found them. The [illegible] on his next trip through this city.

The old gag about the man who lost his suit of underwear when a lady picked a thread off his collar which kept on unraveling, is recalled by the woman who walked down North Main street recently unraveling a ball of twine back at the Lautsbaugh Pharmacy on South Main street. Evidentally the string caught on a button of her dress when she was in the store and she walked out without knowing it. She turned north and crossed Park avenue west and was passing the corner when Leo Hans in the Crafton Shoe company store saw her and the long line of string stretching across the street behind her, and told her of it. She had unraveled 200 feet of string.

WILLKIE GIVEN WRITE-IN VOTE

Surprising Support Gained By Utilities Magnate In New Jersey.

TRENTON, N. J.—(INS)—Wendell Willkie, the utilities executive, rolled up a surprisingly large "write-in" vote for the Republican presidential nomination today in late returns in New Jersey's primary election.

Although District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey was unopposed in the Republican presidential preference primary, Willkie supporters claimed the Hoosier "dark horse" would roll up at least 20,000 votes for the GOP presidential nomination by "write-ins."

The first 1200 districts out of 3,631 in the state gave Dewey about 16,000 votes to 1300 for Willkie.

In the Republican primary, State Senator Robert C. Hendrickson was running ahead of former Governor Harold Hoffman for the GOP nomination for governor. With more than two-thirds of the precincts counted, Hendrickson had a 17,000 vote majority.

There were no contests in the Democratic primary. President Roosevelt picked up the state's 32 convention votes for a third term if he seeks it. Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison was unopposed for the Democratic nomination for governor and James H. R. Cromwell, husband of Doris Duke, was likewise unopposed for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

RESIDENTS FILE PROTEST WITH CITY COUNCIL

Ask Removal of Heavy Traffic From Street; Problem Left Up to Director.

Following up a deluge of complaints against the routing of heavy trucks over the street, property owners on Ausdale avenue today had lodged a formal appeal with city officials for removal of the U. S. route 30-N detour.

The protest, bearing the signatures of 15 property owners on the thoroughfare was submitted to city council last night at a special session.

Referred to Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton by council President Howard G. Miller, the petition requests the removal of through traffic from the street during the re-construction of West Fourth street.

Despite threats of court action, Crafton said this morning there was little likelihood that any immediate action would be taken to remove the detour from the street.

Bandied about for the past three months by state, county and the city, the detour was set up Monday after state officials had complained that it was costing $400 a month to maintain the detour over the Shelby-Ontario road.

The state highway department pointed out that maintenance of a detour while West Fourth street was closed was the city's obligation since the city and not the state had the street closed while water lines are being installed.

The state had taken over maintenance of the Shelby-Ontario detour only after county officials had threatened to close the road to heavy truck traffic which they charged was pounding the surface to pieces.

The detour was set up on Ausdale avenue by Mayor William J. Locke after City Engineer W. C. Statler assured him that heavy traffic would not injure the pavement, laid two years ago at the cost of $12,220.

Locke promised to have the state maintain its own detour as soon as it started paving work.

Loretta Young, the celluloid dream girl, and Tom Lewis, the advertising lad (formerly Glenda Farrell's chief admirer) are sniffing orange blossoms. . . . The Shirley Temple "retirement" story was good reading—that's all. She's going to cash in on personal appearances and radio shots, then sign with another company.

The French and British armies are planning a "mouse-trap maneuver against the German troops—the French driving from a point east of the Neuse to Mezieres, the Belgian and English forces cutting from Avesnes to Mezieres. The move, if successful, is calculated to trap 2,500 German tanks and 80 divisions of crack Nazi troops.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Frank Lloyd is doing something no movie man has done in the past 16 years. He's making a picture with a background in the American Revolution, a big picture with a flock of stars and a top budget and a big location trip.

Last man to try this was David Wark Griffith, the old master of the silents. Griffith made "America" in 1924, and "America" brought in so few box-office beans that it started a cycle, a cycle away from Spirit of '76 stuff that has persisted until today.

The reason Frank Lloyd is bucking the legendary jinx is a schoolmarm named Elizabeth Page. Miss Page wrote a voluminous novel about the beginning of the U. S. A., and she called it "Tree of Liberty." The excellent book started out, on the basis of excellent reviews, to be another "Gone With the Wind," but somewhere along the route the wind abated and the novel became just an unusually good seller instead of a best. Lloyd is still convinced "Tree of Liberty" will make a best-seller movie.

He's calling it, however, "The Howards of Virginia." Afraid perhaps, that a picture called "Tree of Liberty" would be confused with a Warner Bros. "patriotic short," the only movies which have contended recently that Yankee Doodle stuff was good box-office. Afraid, he says, that coming out in an election year it would buck the apathy engendered in a voting populace which will have had its ears rattled by political oratory generously seasoned with the word "liberty." Anyway, since the story is about early Virginia families including one named Howard, he figures "The Howards of Virginia" fits better.

He is not afraid of any "jinx" on the Revolutionary Period. His picture will have history in it, but it won't be injected ponderously or pedantically. As he describes it, the historical aspects will be served in easy-to-take capsules of drama and comedy, with none of that hold-everything-here-comes-a-lesson rawness.

Lloyd took his principals (Cary Grant and Martha Scott) to the Rockefeller-restored town of Williamsburg, Va., where for the first time permission was granted a movie company to use the restorations and originals of colonially important structures. Lloyd says he never had finer, more truly authentic sets, and the same goes for the reproduction in use for studio shots.

Frank Lloyd would be all for authenticity no matter what, but here he has a practical reason aside from art. The Rockefeller people granted use of Williamsburg only on condition that studio-created sets would maintain fidelity to their originals. So studio artisans have matched woodwork, chandeliers, exterior brick, fireplaces, tile, stairway, even the usually unnoticed floors, with painstaking exactitude.

'IRON HORSES' HELP FARMERS HERE CATCH UP

Half of Corn Planted, County Agent Says; Fruit Outlook For Are Brighter.

Richland county farmers who started their spring work far behind schedule this year have been able to make up much of their lost time with the help of "iron horses."

County farmers have more than half of their corn planted—later than usual, but not as late as it would have been if they had depended entirely on horses. A large number of them now own tractors.

"The mechanical age has been a great help to the farmer this year and one needs only to drive through the county to see it," County Agent George B. Ganyard said.

With a tractor it is possible to plow and seed several more acres of land in a day than with horses, and farmers have pressed all the available tractors and equipment into service this spring, the county agent said.

Rain Needed Now.

Farmers have also been helped by ideal weather in the past month, but they would like to see it rain more now that most of the corn is planted. Late winter and early spring rains and cold weather retarded the growing season and made it impossible for farmers to do early plowing and planting.

Ganyard said the new oats crop looks fair, but it needs more moisture. Pastures and vegetable crops in the county are in good condition.

With the exception of peaches and blackberries, the outlook for a fruit crop is better than the crop experts predicted. The extreme cold killed the peaches and damaged the berry crops.

CHAPTER XVI.

As Brooke took her place at the round table, Helen said, fussing over the dishes while Tom carved a leg of lamb, "You must be starved, Brooke! Is Mrs. Kingsbury's maid a good cook? I guess you've had so many fancy things to eat . . ." She peered inquisitively at Brooke's controlled face. "What kind of an apartment is it?"

The veil over personal questions behind Helen's searching little eyes and her father's emotionless dark eyes was thin . . .

She smiled a little as she took a heaping plate from her father. "Ellen is a very good cook and a dear person. And the apartment is comfortable but rather drab. I haven't the faintest idea where we'll settle when we come back . . ." That would put Helen at ease.

But this was an opening for Helen. Crisply, she said, "Well, I—I wouldn't let what happened bother me if I were you. He isn't worth it! He just isn't worth it! I always thought, and your father, too, that he was . . ."

Tom looked across the table, his heavy dark brows drawn together. "Maybe Brooke doesn't want to talk about it now, Helen."

"Why, Tom, I didn't mean . . . I wouldn't . . ." She blushed beneath her rouge.

Poor Helen. She wanted so terribly to know. Brooke asked, "How are things at the mill?"

"Oh, all right." Still frowning, her father said, "When are you going, Brooke, and where?"

She told him. Then Helen took up the unfinished gossip and the dreaded first meal came to an end.

However, when they were in the large kitchen, Helen began, "Brooke, I didn't mean, dear . . . But we were so upset. Tom said he wasn't surprised, not a bit. I know how you must have felt. What did happen? Grace wouldn't say anything. I do think she might have told me!"

Picking up a plate, drying it slowly, Brooke said, "He's married Irene Davies, a very rich woman, Helen. They sailed for Hawaii. That's all I know."

"And after all these years . . . You had faith but I never did. He's a strange boy. And the way he acted when he came home! So unfriendly and never looking up any of his old friends. I'll bet he never told anybody in New York that his mother had a boarding house. Well, all I've got got to say it . . ."

This would go on for hours. Brooke said, drying the last dish, "I'm going down to see Grace tonight."

After a decent interval she put on her coat and, hatless, went out. How good the air was here! Through lighted windows she saw familiar heads, yet she felt as if she were only a visitor in this old familiar town. The big white house on the corner, Rod's old home, was lighted brightly. As she walked up the path and up the steps, she saw familiar faces and white heads in the parlor—old Mrs. Stephens with her dog on her lap; spry, wrinkled little Mrs. Donovan looking over spectacles at the newspaper; the Colonel turning the radio.

Mrs. Westover, usually in the kitchen at this hour, was upstairs. Stout, her dark curly hair close-cropped like a man's she was sitting in an old leather rocking chair by the window.

She kissed Broke with genuine affection. "I wondered if you had come! I was coming to see you if you hadn't come to see me tonight."

They looked at each other, the large, brown eyes of Rod's mother ashamed, Brooke's misty with hated tears.

"You look fine, dear," Grace said.

Come, let's get it over! Don't let's pretend it never happened!

Grace returned to the rocking chair; Brooke sat on the bed. How substantial Grace looked, how sincere and honest as she pulled the chair closer and looked at her unflinchingly.

"You're just as pretty as ever, anyhow," she said, smiling slightly. "Helen is such a fool! You'd have thought it was she, the way she's been goin' on about it, and about me—because I let some of my people go. Not all. I can't let them out because they haven't got any place to go. They begged . . ."

She sighed. She looked no longer strong and substantial but tired and resigned. "I had to, Brooke. I had to take money from Rod. I didn't want to, knowing it was that woman's money but I—I just couldn't hold out any longer. She has so much and Rod said I needn't do anything any more if I didn't want to. I haven't answered her letter. I haven't even thanked her for the check—because I didn't like it. And I just don't understand it."

Brooke moistened her lips. "He loves her. I've met her. She's . . ." much as she hated to say it, "fascinating. I don't want you to be loyal to me, Grace, or let this make any difference between Rod and you. It's done now and you deserve all he can do for you."

"Bless you. I said I wouldn't take a penny of her money at first. But . . . well, money can do a lot and I could certainly use some." Giving Brooke a weary smile, she said, "The hardest letters I've ever written are the ones I've been writing to you. I still can't understand it and I'll never quite forgive him for it. I say that but . . . but I know I will. He's still my boy. There's a lot I don't understand about young people today. Rod wrote me these words, 'Mother, I shall always love Brooke'."

It was like a blow across her face. Biting her lip, Brooke said, "Because I tried to make myself into everything he wanted me to be there was no reason to dislike me. That's what he meant."

"Maybe he did. But it seemed to me a queer thing for a boy who had just been married to say, Brooke, how old is she? He said she was a little older and the picture he sent, the newspaper picture . . . she looked . . ."

"I don't know. She is older than Rod."

"I suppose I'll meet her. She was married before, too, wasn't she? I didn't like that either, his marrying a divorced woman."

She couldn't tell Grace about Irene's first marriage, that Rod was her third husband, that she had a son, why prolong it?

Grace said, sighing, "And so I'm going to take it easy, Brooke. It's the only chance I've ever had and maybe my last chance. Rod wanted me to go to Florida on a trip but—you know how I am—I don't think this place can run without me." She nodded. "Yes, I know. It's bad for you, dear. Very bad. You and I love him more than any one else in the world. And now you're going off to Hawaii with Mrs. Kingsbury? How is the old lady? Is she hard to live with? Stingy, isn't she? How's Jim?"

Grace was unaltered but it was simple enough to see that the comfort and freedom that Irene's money would buy for her would in the end endear Rod's wife to her.

Mrs. Kingsbury's poise was shattered the night they sailed. She was reduced to a trembling old lady, unnerved by the noisy crowds that jammed the pier for the midnight sailing. She walked unevenly, shaking, but neither Brooke nor Ellen dared to offer assistance.

"I hope we sail promptly," Mrs. Kingsbury snapped. "They're all drunk! Disgusting!"

Brooke was excited. So many people! Such hilarity! But suddenly she felt unimportant and alone. If she were not careful, she would be sorry for herself again that no corsage or orchids or gardenias or violets adorned the trim becoming suit; that there was no one who cared that she was going.

She had seen Jim last night and although he had taken for granted that he would see her off, she had asked him not to, explaining that Mrs. Kingsbury would probably need her constant attention. At an inexpensive night club they had danced and feigned a gayety neither felt. They said their goodbyes quietly in the hall outside the apartment in the early hours of the morning. When she left him, she had thought how relieved he must be that she was going.

The gangplank at last. . . . An exceedingly gay young man jostled them, then bowed low, coloring when Mrs. Kingsbury exclaimed, "I should think you would be sorry!" Brooke followed Ellen, who knew the ship, feeling that the vastness of the liner engulfed her. A middle-aged stewardess beamed with recognition and they went into a large comfortable cabin where Mrs. Kingsbury removed her hat, sank into a chair and demanded air.

Brooke's cabin was next to Mrs. Kingsbury's and feeling useless with Ellen so capable, Brooke went to hers when Ellen asked her if she did not wish to see it. One of her bags took up almost the entire floor space and it was so suffocatingly warm that she remained only a few minutes. Stimulated by an excitement she could express to no one, her heart was tapping wildly. "I must see if I can help Ellen," she thought, and knocked lightly at the door.

Ellen opened the door a little and whispered, "Mrs. Kingsbury is going to bed now," and closed it again. Ellen's eyes were excited, too!

Was the old lady ill? Brooke wondered, walking in the direction of the salon.

Whistles were blowing and people were shouting good-byes. For a few moments she lost herself in the sea of new personalities and faces, wondering who would stay and who would leave the ship. Then, feeling conspicuously alone, she went on deck and walked the fast deck pace of one going nowhere.

Animation and depression came and went. Odd, to feel a glow of happiness when at the same time she wanted to weep. She was going where Ellen said it was warm and indescribably beautiful. . . . The lights of the city she saw now were the same lights Irene and Rod had seen. . . . The bon voyage voices. . . . But why was she going and where . . . and what came after that? She had no spirit of adventure she told herself. Oh, but she wanted the life she had planned . . . She did not want this. . . .

The ship was moving. The cool wind blew a strand of dark hair across her face and her hand came up to replace it as she paused at the rail. She stood there a long time. If she permitted herself to think, she would be plunged into uncertainties and doubts and an aching unhappiness.

Going in, she saw that the salon was deserted except for a man, dark-eyed and bearded, who looked at her with an inviting smile. She did not smile back and went hurriedly to her cabin, losing her way twice before she found it. The remainder of her baggage had arrived and also an immense basket of flowers and a telegram.

Tears sprang to her eyes. Flowers for her and so beautiful . . . Despising her tears, she found the card. On it was written simply "Julian," in a large scrawl. That was all. But how had he known on what day and on what ship she was sailing? No matter. . . . She looked at the flowers lovingly as if at this moment they were the only things in the world, alive and tender, that were really hers.

The telegram was from Jim. She could be sentimental and cry a little that Jim had remembered, but she could not be certain that she dare be sentimental about Julian. It was a thoughtful and elaborate gesture, to be sure, but—but was he teasing her again? No matter that, either.

A New Opportunity.

ZORINA, who has never done anything in pictures but look glamorous has a chance at a dramatic role in "I Was An Adventuress," one of the Madison features. The ballerina made her first picture appearance as the water nymph in "Goldwyn Follies." In her new picture she is a jewel thief who falls in love with handsome Richard Greene. An old "menace" returns to the screen in Eric Von Stroheim. The trials of an amateur playwright are depicted in "Curtain Call."

Alger Hero.

No one ever thinks of the great Thomas A. Edison as a rags-to-riches hero or a home-town-boy-makes-good, but these old formulas come to light in the biographical film "Edison, The Man." His trials, his successes and his modern miracles started when he was a small town boy and ended only with his death. He was acclaimed the wizard of electrical developments. His life story is filled with human interest. Rita Johnson is seen as Spencer Tracy's wife in the film.

First Comedy.

"Ninotchka" is Greta Garbo's first comedy and is considered by many one of her best pictures It's theme, while presented from a light comedy angle, is particularly timely for it deals with life in Soviet Russia, with the harshness of the Communist regime Melvyn Douglas represents the attractive life of a capitalist who eventually lures Comrade Ninotchka from the stern life of Communism. "The Return of Dr. X" with Humphrey Bogart, Rosemary Lane and Wayne Morris is also shown.

Dangerous Assignment.

There's hard riding and fast shooting in "Days of Jesse James," the Republic picture which the Park presents Thursday through Saturday. Roy Rogers, hero of many Western films, portrays a young bank investigator who is hired by the Cattlemen's Association to get the bottom of the series of hold-up perpetrated by the James brothers and their gang. The second feature is "Grand Jury Secrets" with John Howard and Gail Patrick.

One of Ten Best.

One of the ten best pictures of 1939 was "Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex" in which Bette Davis added another laurel to her crown for artistic portrayal. She plays Queen Elizabeth as no other actress has ever depicted her. Errol Flynn plays the dashing Essex whose head was the forfeit in a game of love and ambition. "Four Wives," also shown at the Majestic, has the Lane sisters and Gale Page in a sequel to "Four Daughters."

BLOTTO SERVICE

St. Louis Official Commends Taxicab Company.

ST. LOUIS—(INS)—"Blotto service" for inebriated motorists is a good thing, according to St. Louis Director of Streets and Sewers Frank J. McDevitt, who recently commended a local taxicab company for distributing to every tavern in the city circulars advertising the service.

"Blotto service is available at any time, day or night, to anyone who, through drinking or sickness, does not feel capable of driving his own car," the circular states. "A cab with an extra driver will call and you ride the cab and the extra driver will follow with your car."

A patron wishing an extra driver must ask for "blotto service" when calling a cab. The cost is double the meter rate, plus a 50-cent service charge. "Blotto service" first was put into effect in St. Louis by the two major cab companies about two years ago.

("Blotto," according to Webster's New International Dictionary, is a slang word meaning "completely drunk.").

Lima Swamps Braves, 17 to 6; Play Here Tonight

Poor Hurling: Errors Lead to Mansfield Loss

Pandas Comb Two Brave Moundsmen for 16 Hits; Collect Three Home Runs.

By CHARLES MARTIN

INEFFECTIVE PITCHING coupled with five glaring errors cost the Mansfield Braves a 17 to 6 decision at Lima last night and left them floundering in sole possession of last place in the Ohio State league race, five games behind the pace-making Pandas.

Manager Dewey Stover saw two of his rookie moundsmen shelled all over the Lima park as the Pandas pounded out 16 hits, including three home runs. It was the Braves second straight setback.

Searching frantically to bolster his wobbly hurling staff, Stover selected Lloyd "Deacon" Joyce, veteran righthander, to face the front-running Pandas at the Fairground at 8:15 p. m. today.

Bob Petersen, righthander, who joined the Braves last week, made his initial start last night but Stover jerked him in the fourth and Dick Otto took over. It didn't make any difference for Lima found Otto's offerings to its liking.

The Braves committed five bobbles and all of them figured in the scoring. Bill Padar, second baseman had three of them. Cindric, Lima first baseman and Weigel, catcher, were the home run hitters, with the former getting two.

Lima forged ahead, 2 to 0, in the second, drove over seven in the fourth, added three in the sixth and climaxed its scoring with five in the seventh. Freddie Lewis, Mansfield boy, playing rightfield for Lima, added a double and single to the Pandas attack.

Bob Finney, made his first start in left field and although he failed to get a hit, was impressive in the field.

Stover today had cut his roster to the 15-player limit. Llody Graham, who has been playing left field in place of Connie Zerman, had been released by the Braves. Zerman and Frank Kress, pitcher, are on the suspended list.

Eight men make up the pitching and catching departments. Carl Foldenauer and Dick Mangan are the backstops. Righthand hurlers are Llody "Deacon" Joyce, George Laurila, Bob Arnold and Dick Otto; southpaws are Fred Peterson and Stan Kudelvitz.

Finney hails from Galion and has been working out with the Mansfield club for several days. He was signed by the Mansfield baseball officials yesterday. Finney is 18 years old, weighs around 185 and stands six feet, one inch. It is his first year in professional ball. He bats and throws left handed.

Leon Maloney, a member of the 1939 pitching corps has been placed on the ineligible list, Stover reported today.

EXPECT NO NEW RECORDS AT STATE ATHLETIC MEET

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Several new champions, but few new records, are expected to emerge Friday and Saturday from the state high school track-field, baseball, golf and tennis finals at Ohio State University's athletic plant.

A total of 2,463 boys from 245 schools attacked the Ohio track and field records in district meets last week end, but only one mark was broken and other tied. Big Bob Shaw, Fremont Ross' all-around athlete, almost tossed the shot off the property with a 53-foot, 3½ inch heave to better the 52-2¾" state record held by "Jabbo" Giles of Newark since 1938, while Lane of East Tech (Cleveland) topped the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.8 seconds to match the mark held jointly by Paris of Toledo Scott and Hoeflinger of Columbus North.

Printers, Tires Tied For Lead In News-Journal 'A' Loop.

By George Sattler

RICHLAND PRINTERS, last year's champions, and Barnes & Schmid Tires, league newcomer, found themselves tied for first place in The News-Journal Class A league golf race today, following matches played at Possum Run yesterday.

Outstanding feature of last night's play was the eleven scores of 39 of lower turned in by "A" linksmen. This is unusually brisk play for the first matches of the season.

Pete Linster and Al Kushin turned in the top individual performances of the matches, both shooting 35's. Linster is number one man for the Richland Printers and Kushin number one man for the Mansfield Athletic Supply lads.

Results of the team play is as follows: Richland Printing, 4, Sloan's Drugs 1; Athletic Supply 3; Long Bar 2; Yunckers 2; Oak's Club 1; and Barnes-Schmid Tires 4; Greystone Nite Club 1.

Buckeyes Boast 1st Individual Golf Title

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio State university, thanks to Sophomore Billy Gilbert of Cincinnati, today boasted its first individual golf championship in western conference competition.

The team was in the possession of the University of Illinois.

* * *

Gilbert grabbed the individual crown for the Buckeyes on the last green in the 72-hole competition yesterday with 298, one stroke ahead of Robert Palmer of Michigan. The Ohio Stater entered the last 36 holes with an eight-stroke advantage.

Mansfield Wreckers After Fifth Straight Win Today

Riding the wave of a four-game winning streak the Mansfield Wrecking company softball clubs will try for victory No. 5 when they take on the Wemco club of the Y. M. C. A. Independent league in a non-league setto at 6 p. m. today on the Armory diamond. Manager Nick Wagner announced early today that either Bob Lapine or Bob Shaffer will be on the hill for the Wreckers. Aid Geiger is expected to handle the Wemco hurling assignment.

Vitt Calls on Mel Harder to Stop Red Sox

Boston Opens Two-Game Series at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND —(AP)—The pace-setting Red Sox came to town today and Manager Oscar Vitt called Mel Harder from his tepee to hurl the opener of a two-game series. Southpaw Fritz Ostermueller drew the Boston assignment.

* * *

The Sox pushed their lead over the Indians back to two and a half games yesterday by beating Detroit while the Redskins were dropping their first contest of the year to the New York Yankees, 10 to 2.

Besides being Harder's first starting assignment of the season, the game is expected to provide the answer to whether the Indians made a mistake by releasing Willis Hudlin.

Before the season opened, Vitt named Bob Feller, Hudlin, Johnny Allen and Al Milnar as his big four, with the footnote that Hudlin would give way to Harder as soon as the latter's arm was in shape.

Milnar looked anything but impressive yesterday as the Yankees pounded his southpaw slants for eight hits in six and two-thirds innings. The champions continued their assault against Harry Eisenstat, Johnny Humphries and Bill Zuber.

* * *

Meanwhile, Marius Russo toned down the Indian attack to three scattered hits, a double by Jeff Heath and two singles by Ray Mack.

Writer Reasons That Oldtimers Still Best Bets

Cites Jimmy Foxx as Outstanding Example, Points Out 15-Year Record.

By JUDSON BAILEY

MAYBE it's nostalgia creeping up, but a fellow can't escape feeling every once in awhile that the old heroes are the best.

There's Jimmie Foxx of the Boston Red Sox. In the 15 years he has been swashbuckling around the American league, a lot of fine new faces have appeared and a lot of them have passed right on out.

But old "Double X" still is setting the opposing pitchers crazy with his terrific slugging. He hit a home run with the bases loaded yesterday for the second straight day to help Boston beat the Detroit Tigers 11-8 and get a stronger grip on first place in the junior circuit.

He has hit 11 homers and batted in 38 runs already this spring to set a spectacular pace for the American league.

The world champion New York Yankees took some of the pressure off Boston by belting the Cleveland Indians 10-2 with a 12-hit attack, led by George Selkirk and Charley Keller.

The victory was not sufficient to get the Yanks out of the cellar, however, because the Chicago White Sox edged out the Washington Senators 9-8. Joe Kuhel led the Sox's 15-hit assault with five hits including a home run and two doubles.

* * *

These were the only completed games in the American league.

In the only contest the weather allowed in the National league the Brooklyn Dodgers squeezed past the Chicago Cubs 4-3 to end a three-game losing streak.

The Cubs scored three runs in the second and third innings on homers by Bill Nicholson and Jimmy Gleeson, and Claude Passeau shut out the Dodgers on two hits for five innings. Brooklyn scored twice in the sixth. Then Passeau loaded the bases in the ninth and Dolph Camilli rapped out a single. All the boys had to do then was touch all the bases.

WANT HOLIDAY GAME

West Salem's Merchant baseball team announced today that they have not, as yet, been able to schedule a game for May 30th, Decoration Day. Any baseball team in Mansfield or vicinity is requested to write to Russell Shakley, Box 37, West Salem, Ohio.

Grandstand admission has been cut to 25 cents and dime bets may be placed.

BLENDED 33 TIMES TO MAKE ONE GREAT BEER!

33 SEPARATE BREWS — BLENDED LIKE FINEST COFFEE AND CHAMPAGNE — FOR GOODNESS THAT NEVER VARIES

IN every glass of Blue Ribbon there are 33 fine brews from 33 separate kettles!

Only Blue Ribbon brings together these 33 fine brews... Not one, or two, or five . . . but 33!

Each brew is as fine as the choicest ingredients and Pabst's 96 years of skill can make it!

But brewing is a natural process, and Nature never yields two brews that are exactly alike, even with the same formula and strict scientific control.

That's why Pabst goes to so much extra work and expense to blend 33 separate brews.

The result is: America's Premium Beer, with a smoothness that is unique . . . a goodness that is always the same.

Sometime today, have the pleasure of meeting a glass of Blue Ribbon.

It's the BLEND that Betters the Beer

Try Pabst Blue Ribbon and Prove it

Redlegs Face Giants Today

Cincinnati Still Shaky After Last Licking.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The pace-setting Reds faced the Giants today with some of the confidence befitting the league leaders, but still a bit shaky from a 13 to 4 beating in their last brush with Boston.

Paul Derringer, who allowed the phantom Phils to drive him from the mound last Saturday but has won three games and in one game gave the Cardinals only four hits, or Whitey Moore were to face Giant sluggers.

Carl Hubbell was called to stop the Reds who took three straight on the New Yorkers' first western invasion.

Causes for optimism in the Reds' camp were (1) that they were still a full game ahead of the pursuing Dodgers and (2) that Moore bids fair to become Manager Bill McKechnie's fourth starting pitcher in a manner gratifying to the Rhinelanders.

Moore's record shows only one victory and no losses this season but his relief hurling has pleased the Deacon.

• • •

Brooklyn's defeat of Chicago yesterday allowed the Dodgers to move up a half length as rain forced the Reds to remain idle in a game scheduled with Boston.

BARNES TEAM SWAMPS CATHOLIC FORESTERS

Piling up 14 runs in eight innings, the Barnes Challengers softball team swamped the Catholic Foresters yesterday at Barnes field, by a 14 to 1 score. McGregor toed the rubber for the Barnes team, allowing only four hits.

Saints Having Plenty Trouble

After 27 Games They're Still Tied For Cellar.

(By Associated Press)

The St. Paul Saints, rated in pre-season predictions as a fifth place club with an outside chance for fourth, are away to such a poor start in the American Association that they may have trouble even living up to that forecast.

The Saints, after 27 games of the young season, are in a virtual tie with Toledo for the cellar, having won only 10 games as against 17 defeats.

Minneapolis dropped the Saints a half game lower last night with a 5 to 3 victory behind Elon Hegsett's steady 10-hit pitching.

The leading Kansas City Blues and Milwaukee played a 2-2 tie in 10 innings before rain halted the battle.

Simpson-Appleseed Stage Track Meet

Johnny Appleseed track team will endeavor to register their first win over a John Simpson Junior high school athletic team when the two schools stage a dual meet to decide the city track title at Stadium field today at 4 p. m.

John Simpson defeated Appleseed in both basketball and skating earlier this year, so the boys from Cline avenue are expected to stage a real battle when the two teams meet on the cinderpaths this afternoon.

• • •

However, the edge appears to be with the Simpson tracksters. In the meets so far this year in which the two teams have participated, the Simpson lads have turned in the most imposing performances. Monday, when the two schools ran off a meet with Shelby Junior high school, Simpson finished in front of Appleseed, with a seven point margin.

MANY LEADERS STEM TIDE OF WAR TRADING

Less Gloomy View of Share On Domestic Front.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Many leaders in the stock market today managed to push to higher ground, stemming the boiling decline of yesterday's war frightened trading.

Favored much of the time were U. S. Steel, Youngstown, Lockheed, Johns Manville, Montgomery Ward, Loft, Chrysler, Great Northern preferred, Anaconda and Phelps Dodge.

Some of the domestic business factors favoring a less gloomy view of the share price situation—even though obscured for the moment by war news—included:

A three-fold increase in the profits of Glenn Martin, big plane maker, in the first quarter over the same period last year.

A rise in U. S. Steel open-hearth operations in the Youngstown area to 100 per cent of capacity.

Writer Describes Fighting In Belgian No-Man's Land

SEES SHELLS BURST AMONG ALLIED RANKS

Shattered Ruins of Village Give Indication of What Blitzkrieg Means.

By FREDERICK C. OECHSNER
(UP Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT—I stood for half an hour in No Man's Land in southern Belgium yesterday, between the German and Allied artillery, watching the flaming bursts from the German shells as they exploded in the retreating Allied columns.

I drove through the countryside and saw what blitzkrieg means, long miles of green fields, interspersed with tranquil, sun-bathed villages and then, around a bend in the road, like a searing scar on the face of a beautiful woman, suddenly the shattered ruins of a village, little more than a pile of broken stone and broken bodies, where German Stuka dive bombers, tanks and artillery had smashed an Allied stand.

Along the roads I saw the bloated bodies of dead horses, the abandoned field guns, the battered tanks that retreating Allies had left in their wake. Children were playing on the guns and tanks.

I saw the long lines of motorized infantry and artillery moving up to the front, endlessly, and the Red Cross ambulances coming back with the wounded.

Then, at the headquarters of the German sixth army outside Brussels, I heard Col.-Gen. Walter Von Reichenau, commander in chief on this front, say that the decisive battle of the war was yet to come and that the Germans would win it.

Returning to Aachen on the frontier to file this dispatch, I was myself under an Allied airplane bombardment which sent anti-aircraft guns into blazing action as the bombs crashed.

At his headquarters outside Brussels, Reichenau told me and a group of other foreign correspondents that the fighting so far had been only preliminary to the decisive battle.

"We have won the first tricks but we have yet to meet the body of the enemy," he said.

"I can imagine our forward march being halted for a while now, and that the next few days will see hard fighting, for Weygand (the Allied commander in chief, Gen. Maxime Weygand) will surely give orders to every man to stand his ground.

"I need not say however, that we look confidently to the future."

Reichenau said he talked frequently with Adolf Hitler by telephone, and gave Hitler periodic reports on troop movements

"He is not only the political but the military leader of the German people in the full sense of the word," Reichenau said of Hitler

Germany has no illusions about this war, Reichenau said, and is indulging in no unjustifiable celebrations in advance

"We know a greater battle must come," he explained "We will prepare for it and win it."

$450 PLEDGED FOR RED CROSS RELIEF FUND

All Contributions Voluntary, No House to House Canvass, Drive Workers Say.

While persons employed in public buildings, down town places and industries were being asked to contribute to the Red Cross drive for war relief funds, Red Cross officials were stressing the fact that there would be no house to house canvass and no persons will be urged to give who do not want to voluntarily

The first two days of the drive for $6,000 in Mansfield and the county, brought in $450 in volunteer subscriptions to Red Cross headquarters. Of this sum $190 was turned in between Monday noon and Tuesday noon.

There were only six one-dollar contributions from individuals, all of the others ranging from $3 to $5 There have been two $50 contributions.

Last night almost every radic program issued an appeal to contribute war relief funds through the American Red Cross, and all commentators echoed the plea, pointing out the misery of 5,000,000 refugees already in France, with the roads clogged with an unending stream of them.

Red Cross workers reported today that already there are thousands of refugee casualties.

All money contributed in America will go to war relief. All local chapters will retain 15 per cent for the purchase of yarn and materials which will also be sent on when clothing is made All administration expenses must be paid out of the funds of local chapters of the plane builders called to Washington for the government's 50-000 - planes - a - year production conference.

ARMY BLAMED FOR AIR MESS

Plane Builder Says Modern Battle Weapons Used 20 Years Ago.

The manufacturers can expand to such a production capacity in about two years, Johnson estimated. Some red tape, he said, must be cut away. He suggested three moves that the government could make to give the plane builders the "best possible co-operation." They were:

"1 Get the orders in the manufacturers' hands and leave it up to the industry.

"2. Establish priority for the government in the manufacture of machine tools, a tight bottleneck at present.

"3 Establish some control so that organized labor doesn't run away with itself or the industry in the stress of the defense increase program."

Johnson said that the major problem was securing necessary skilled labor.

Johnson said that he believes that the industry can turn out 50,000 planes in two years, and thereafter make 50 000 a year. He declared that it would take the government five years to provide a pilot force sufficient to man such an air armada.

BICYCLE RIDERS, GET QUARTERS READY, LICENSE LAW PASSES

Get your quarters ready, kids.

You won t need them right away, but under action taken last night by city council, Mansfield will have bicycle licenses in another 30 days

Council voted 7 to 0 on the measure designed to license and regulate the operation of an estimated 3,000 wheels in the city.

It was the third reading of the ordinance, submitted by a special committee headed by Arthur L. Croak. The committee had the proposal under advisement for more than a year.

The bill, sought by Police Chief Meade K. Bates and Mansfield cycle dealers and backed by the Boy Scouts is aimed at curbing numerous thefts of the bicycles that have occurred in Mansfield in recent years.

Provisions of the new ordinance call for the inspection of all bicycles by the police department to see that they comply with regulations covering brakes, lights and horn.

Although no plan has yet been decided on, it is expected that licenses and applications will be purchased and turned over to the police department for distribution before the June 21 deadline.

Bicycle riders will be issued a license card with a metal identification plate sealed on the wheel, while a similar card bearing the owner's name and address and a complete description of the bicycle will be kept on file at police headquarters.

A penalty up to $25 is provided for failure to license and observe traffic regulations.

Writer Witnesses Capitulation of Belgian Fortress

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
WITH THE GERMAN ARMIES ON THE WESTERN FRONT—(AP)—A gigantic fort capitulated under our eyes today as we stood on heights between Eupen and Malmedy with a superb commanding view of the whole region, now German

It later proved to be Batice, last of the great major fortification works around Liege, Belgium.

Artillery, followed by bomb-diving warplanes, made it easy for the infantry to force its entry.

Stukas (bomb-divers) began their attacks at 3 p m (8 a. m. EST) and we saw the Nazi Swastikas raised atop the main fortification 20 minutes later

FUGITIVE FOUND SUICIDE VICTIM

Man Threw Woman and Child From Automobile.

XENIA — (INS) — The search for the man who seriously wounded a Xenia woman and then threw her and her baby from an automobile ended today with the discovery of his body near Middletown.

Apparently a victim of suicide, the body was identified as that of O. A. Bingamon, 56, a Xenia feed store owner. Previously he had been identified by Mrs. Hazel Vance, 22, as the man who had wounded her on the outskirts of Xenia. The baby, Beverly Ann, aged 2, escaped with minor bruises.

A note found in Bingamon's car shed no light upon the shooting. Greene county officials said Bingamon had been "keeping company" with Mrs. Vance.

Death Stills Hand of Butler Man Who Gave Quilts to Grads

BUTLER — Death today had stilled the once agile fingers of George B. Keefer, 84, who had accomplished the almost incredible task of making a quilt for every boy and girl graduate of Butler high school for 40 years.

Mr. Keefer, loved by hundreds of school children for more than a third of a century, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Allen Brown, one mile west of Lexington. He had been ill a number of months. He left his home here about six months ago to be cared for at the Brown home.

He had served as janitor of the Butler school building for more than 41 years, beginning in 1895 when it was a "little red school house" and his work consisted largely of sweeping out and building four fires daily. His salary in those first years was $60 a year. He gave up his work four years ago.

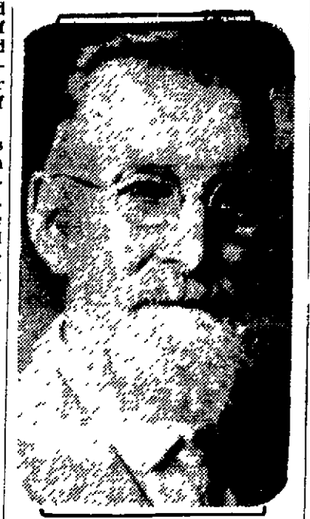
A year after he began work as janitor he started the custom of making hand-made quilts for every member of the graduating class. There were only a few those early years, but later the number increased to 12 and 15 and he still continued to make beautiful quilts for them

His skill with the needle won him first prizes in many quilt contests, once taking first prize in a display of 1,500 fancy quilts

Mr. Keefer was born in Knox county April 8, 1856 and came to this community 54 years ago. He was actively interested in his church, the Butler Evangelical, and continued his work in it until ill health overtook him.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Blanche Tuttle, Marion, Ind., Mrs. J. F. Beemiller of Galion, and Mrs. Brown; a son, Arthur Keefer, Detroit, 13 grandchildren and four great grandchildren, and a number of nieces and nephews

The body will remain at the George funeral home until 2:30 p. m Friday, the hour of the funeral service, when it will be removed to the Evangelical church. Burial will be in Four Corners cemetery.



GEORGE B. KEEFER

Tragic Finish to Class Picnic at Napoleon Written

NAPOLEAN —(UP)— Death wrote a tragic finish today to a high school senior class picnic.

Charles Augensteein, 11, sought to entertain guests at the picnic at his father's country home yesterday by taking them for a motor boat ride on the Maumee river.

The boat caught fire. Charles was drowned and five other young people — Mary Heaston, 17; Robert Heilman, 17; Ruth Limpach, 17; Mary Ann Speiser, 17, and Miranda Augenstein—narrowly escaped death in the flaming craft.

John L Johnson and Ted Dietch, high school teachers, rescued three of the girls The blaze was started when the boat's gasoline tank burst suddenly into flames.

BARN DAMAGED

ASHLAND—Fire believed to have started from an oil stove, resulted in $200 damage to a barn owned by J. B. Brindle of West Liberty street here. Loss in the fire also included 33 chickens, which were kept in a small frame building nearby. The loss was not covered by insurance.

PILOT KILLED

EAST LIVERPOOL—(AP)—Aviation authorities sought today the cause of a small airplane's nose dive at nearby Swaney airport in which Pilot Richard Coleman, 25, was killed.

OPPOSE PLAN OF COALITION

Taft and Bricker Frown on One-Party Government In Peace -Time.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Proposals that Republicans join Democrats in a coalition cabinet to direct America's new defense program were frowned upon today by both U. S. Sen. Robert A Taft a leading candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, and Gov John W. Bricker, mentioned as a dark horse possibility for the nomination.

Shortly after the governor issued a statement in which he declared that "we have seen enough of one-party government in Russia and Germany," Senator Taft, in Indianapolis, asserted that in peacetime Republicans should remain out of a Democratic cabinet because of fundamental attitudes toward domestic issues.

Taft conceded that if the nation became involved in war a cabinet of both political parties might become necessary.

GIVES CHALK TALK

DOCTOR FINDS BRAINS LOSS NOT HANDICAP

Operations Sometimes Leave Patients More Normal Psychiatrists Told.

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—The actual loss of brains by operation or injury does not necessarily handicap a person, the American Psychiatric association was told today.

Dr. Leland B. Alford of St. Louis, Mo, declared that serious destruction of brain tissue in the "speech area" which is supposed to radiate impulses to other parts of the brain, did not interfere with the activity of other parts.

Persons whose speech areas are damaged either by concussions or operations for tumors remained as normal, or more so, than before their accidents or operations.

"A school teacher continued teaching her class efficiently in spite of a large cyst in the frontal lobe" lying just back of the forehead, "a man with a brain tumor which destroyed the speech area of the brain gave his own hospital history" to the receiving attendant, and another patient who had a large part of the speech area of his brain removed by operation continued his work and activities without impairment of his activities. Dr Alford said

His results indicate, the St Louis physician said, that it is impossible to localize in or on the brain such complex activities as speech, hearing, smell, or other sensations since they seem to be functions of the whole brain rather than any individualistic part.

The top of the brain is apparently not the "seat of the soul" as has been postulated for several centuries by physicians and meta-physicians, Dr. William B. Van Wagenen of Rochester, N. Y., told the psychiatrists.

Psychiatrists said the reports were more refutation of the outmoded practice of phrenologists who profess to read personality by bumps on the skull Such bumps, they declared, might be caused by running into a brick wall but not by particular portions of the brain swelling up enough to cause eruptions of the skull bone

Arras Recaptured By French Troops

French Destroy All Bridges Across River Somme to Delay Nazi Advance Toward Paris.

admitted the loss of Arras and Amiens, but denied Nazi claims to Abbeville, while conceding that German motorcycle troops were in the Abbeville area.

It was these troops who today attacked the railway station at Abbeville, 12 miles from the channel, on the Somme estuary.

Arras is approximately 60 miles from the vital channel port of Calais, gateway to England.

Amiens, 35 miles southeast of Arras and about 50 miles from the channel, apparently still was in German hands.

Announcement of the recapture of Arras came shortly after General Weygand had departed for the front in an attempt to rally his troops and turn impending disaster into victory.

The news heartened the civilian population of Paris, many of whom already were streaming out of the capital to seek safety in the south.

Military officials described the situation in the battle zone as highly confused, with Allied and German troops mingling in a general melee.

The spokesman reported, however, that the Allies had not yet established contact with big enemy units, the German push toward the sea being carried out with the aid of light mechanized material.

The immediate task facing General Weygand is to close the breach in the Allied lines through which the Germans swept westward along the Somme valley before the Nazis can rush sufficient reinforcements through the hole to consolidate their positions.

The situation was complicated by the speed with which the armored German units fanned out in all directions after their break through, striking at unexpected places, putting the torch to towns and desolating the countryside.

The Germans were said to be dropping parachute troops and German bombing planes kept up a continual, harassing attack, smashing at Allied lines of communication and troop concentrations.

British Hopes Rise With Reports of Success In Air

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—British hopes of stemming the German march to the sea and the vital channel ports rose today with reports of new air force successes and the slowing down of the intensive German mechanized drive.

The nation was cheered by these reported developments:

The French capture of Arras.

A widespread attack on targets in the industrial Rhineland area by British bombers.

The reported lessening force of the German thrust over soggy fields in northern France.

The arrival of a new contingent of Canadians in England.

The high morale of the British Air Force was indicated in an air ministry report that one British pilot had attacked 20 German bombers, damaged two and escaped.

Meanwhile the pocketed Allied forces in Flanders and northern France were fighting desperately to keep Germany's legions from winning their way to the channel for a direct attack on the British Isles.

Some commentators thought the high command had decided to fight from this admittedly dangerous position at all costs.

There was nothing to indicate that the British expeditionary force pocketed between the English channel and the swift-moving Nazi columns, would elect to undertake a strategic withdrawal.

The British people, shaken by the "Black Tuesday" news which told of the Germans driving to the estuary of the Somme river to form a wedge between the British forces and the main French armies, snapped out of their first shock today.

British leaders and the press declared that the people were prepared to absorb even worse shocks.

Commentators, in sizing up the situation, decided that it was not so bad as first appeared, stating that the German advance mechanized columns which pushed westward through France into Amiens, Arras and Abbeville held their positions only lightly. These forces were said to be highly vulnerable to counterattacks.

German bombs fell on British soil during the night but there were no casualties reported. A communique indicated that the raiding planes were unloading bombs without aiming at any target when they were beaten back by anti-aircraft fire.

The planes dropped explosives offshore and on land at two places along the southeast coast.

Further air activity along the southeast coast indicated that attacks were being made on shipping.

British preparedness in the Mediterranean area was emphasized by a transfer scheme put into effect for Gibraltar, British fortress guarding the western entrance to the Mediterranean. Women and children began to leave for French Morocco under the plan.

An official announcement said that there was "no need for anxiety" over the intentions of Spain, along which Gibraltar lies, and that Spain had "reiterated her strict neutrality."

Famed Attack Strategy of Weygand Reported Ready

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(INS Staff Correspondent)

PARIS—General Maxime Weygand (here eight words censored), having personally inspected every square mile of the battlefield in both northern France and Belgium, is ready to put into effect some of that wizardry which won him victory at Warsaw against the Bolshevists in the Polish-Russian war of 1919.

The late Viscount D'Abernon called that the "fourteenth decisive battle of the world."

Compared to the present battle now raging in northern France and Belgium, the conflict between the Poles and Russians looks in perspective almost trivial, because as the French believe and the Germans assert, it will settle the history of Europe for a thousand years.

Already the German communiques claim victory, but it is essential to realize that the issue of this battle is not yet decided and will not be until the French army has a chance to put into effect its famed tradition of offensive.

Weygand, who is 73, left Paris early yesterday (seven words censored). His trip lasted until deep into the night and took him over the entire territory where the Germans are now attempting to blast out of existence the British and the Belgians and then turn and sweep upon Paris.

Nobody can do more than guess about the subject, which is one of the most closely guarded military secrets, but neutral military observers believe that the French army has still a very great deal of drive in it.

It is pointed out that vigorous action, well prepared, might reverse the tide of events and result in cutting off the principal German Panzer (tank) divisions, seriously cripple the German army and not only win this battle but decide the war.

This is felt today to be France's greatest chance at the moment, when her capital stands almost empty in the brilliant sunshine and the pain of anxiety may be seen on every face.

The knowledge that Paris was threatened came as a terrific shock to most people here, and for a time there was the inevitable tendency among the faint-hearted to consider that all was lost.

But this mood has passed, at any rate for the moment.

Rumania Calls 300,000 Reservists to Colors

(By Associated Press)

BUCHAREST—The Rumanian general staff ordered virtual general mobilization today.

The order called 300,000 reservists to the colors within the next 24 hours.

Rich in oil—badly needed for modern mechanized warfare—King Carol's little Balkan kingdom long has worried over a possible German invasion if the war should spread to southeastern Europe.

All leaves also were cancelled immediately, with officers and men ordered to report back to their units before noon tomorrow.

BRITAIN PLANS CONSCRIPTION OF RESOURCES

"Grave Peril" Being Faced by Nation Causes Bill To Be Rushed.

"Every private interest must give way to the urgent needs of the community.

"We cannot know what the next few weeks or even days will bring, but whatever comes we shall meet it as the British people in the past have met dangers and overcome them.

"But it is necessary that government should be given complete control over persons and property, not just some persons or some particular class or community, but all persons—rich and poor, employer and worker, man and woman, and all property.

"The government is not asking these powers in the spirit of panic.

"There is no need for panic.

"But the government must ask this unusual procedure in view of the grave peril in which the nation stands today."

Laborite and Liberal spokesmen concurred in Attlee's demand.

The projected bill will be tantamount to conscription of the entire resources, man-power and private property of the nation.

Immediately after making his statement, Attlee moved a second reading of the bill, explaining that the minister of labor will be empowered to direct any person to perform any service required and compel workers to retain their present posts or shift to new jobs if necessary.

Excess profits will be taxed 100 per cent.

"There must be no profit out of a national emergency," Attlee said.

"I believe that in this critical time the vast majority of people will willingly give their services to the country and do all that is asked of them."

As made public, the bill extends the powers of King George VI under the emergency powers defense act of 1939 "in order to secure that the whole resources of the country may be rendered immediately available when required for purposes of defense of the realm."

It empowers the privy council to make regulations requiring "persons to place themselves, their services and their property at the disposal of his majesty as it appears to him necessary or expedient."

"Over a wide field," Attlee said in describing the bill, "industry will be carried on for the community, not for private purposes . . .

"Some establishments will be controlled altogether and will work on government account. Some firms may be closed down. There may have to be destruction of property here and there. The control will extend to banks and the finances of the country.

"Broadly speaking, we taking over control in a time of emergency for utilization of all resources for the common weal.

"Everything for which we stand is in jeopardy—our political rights, our rights of conscience, our industrial rights. Everything would go if we do not defeat the enemy."

W. 4TH PAVING FAILS AGAIN

Legislation Rejected by 6 To 1 Vote, Mayor to Call New Session.

he would issue a call for another special session to reconsider the bill as soon as he was able to talk to Schultz.

He said he hoped to get the legislators together Thursday night, but if impossible, would issue the call for Friday morning.

His action, he said, was spurred by interest in obtaining the improvement for Mansfield and getting the job completed so the street, already closed for three months, could be opened to traffic.

The state highway department, under whose supervision the job is to be done, has estimated that it will take at least three months to put down the new pavement.

"I haven't taken a stand on the type of paving to be laid," Locke said, "because I have had the confidence in council being able to handle the job and expected it to approve the job."

He pointed out that the state's specifications calling for a 22-foot brick center lane and two six-foot concrete strips on either side of the 34-foot roadway was accepted by council early in April.

It has been this combination of brick and concrete that Kyle has opposed and the one last night on which he based his objections. He had sought to have the pavement all one type.

Before voting on the measure Kyle voiced his objections on the floor following a lengthy protest voiced by Atty. L. H. Beam, 455 West Fourth street, one of the approximately 300 property owners on the street.

"I think the improvement is very necessary," Kyle asserted, "It's been kicked around for four or five years. I'm in favor of a new roadway but I'm not at all pleased with the method or materials proposed."

He said he had objected to the use of salvaged brick when proposed by the state several months ago because he didn't think it would make a satisfactory wearing surface and for the same reason protested against laying a combination of brick and concrete.

Kyle at a recent caucus advocated a street of all brick construction. Council refused to consider any revision of the plans when informed by the state that it would take from 30 to 90 days to change specifications and possibly delay the project, adding about $10,000 to the cost.

Beam objected to removal of the present concrete base on the street and criticized the use of WPA labor on the project, stating that the government did not have sufficient workers in the county to man the job.

"I think council is being taken for a ride," he emphasized, pointing out that a street in Crestline of almost the same length as the West Fourth street proposal was being resurfaced at a cost of $20,000 while estimates on the Mansfield project have been set at about $170,000.

Philadelphia to Discard Old Style Report Cards.

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)— Philadelphia elementary school children next year may be bringing home report cards to their parents without the traditional "old-fashioned" grading of A, B, C, etc., if a plan now under trial proves satisfactory.

Pupils in 26 of the city's grade schools are the first to receive the new-type report card in an experiment now under way. The new cards are designed to show the pupil's achievement in relation to their ability rather than to a fixed standard for the entire class and are marked simply "satisfactory," or "unsatisfactory" for each subject.

Dr. Armand J. Gerson, Associate Superintendent of Schools, said the cards were drawn up by a committee of teachers after a two year study. Results of the experiment will be studied by both teachers and parents, he said.

Also on the cards are check lists with which teachers may appraise a pupil's social, work and health habits.

NEW SCHOOL CALENDAR SET

Usual Five Vacation Periods Included In Schedule for Next Year.

The present school term still has two weeks to go, but W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, already has the school calendar set up for next year and has scheduled the opening for Sept. 4.

Before they finish this school term, however, pupils will get a holiday on Memorial day, a week from tomorrow.

The 1940-41 schedule calls for 180½ school days and provides for the customary five vacation periods during the year. The first will be Nov. 1 when pupils will be dismissed to permit teachers to attend their annual convention in Cleveland.

There will be other vacations at Thanksgiving, two weeks at Christmas a week and a half at Easter, and Memorial day. Schools will close next year on June 5.

VILLAGE BUILT ON OLD ERROR

Michigan Town Existence Due To Mistake In Canal Plan of 1873.

BEULAH, Mich. — (U.P.) — This town of 350 population is built on a "mistake."

It was here in 1873 that Archibald Jones, an Illinois business man, discovered he should not have tampered with nature. He had planned a canal connecting Crystal lake with Betsie river to open new territory for the Michigan lumbering industry; but instead he created a flood that killed one man, swept away livestock and lowered the Crystal lake level to 15 feet. He had neglected to learn that the lake elevation was higher than the river's.

The roar of a torrent let loose when the last of the canal was cut through was heard five miles away. For two weeks the lake water surged through swamps over an area nine miles long and three miles wide, and when the flood subsided Crystal lake had no timber along its shore but a vast expanse of sand and dried mud.

Settlers, however, dammed the canal cut 30 years later, built a road and railway along the sandy beach and founded Beulah in a valley once submerged in water.

The man who never has occasion to buy an umbrella is one kind of hustler.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, MAY 22, 1940.

Study of European geography might as well be deferred until the opening of the next school year.

An astrologer now foresees Hitler's doom by May, 1941—but not one of the seven on whom the fuehrer depends.

If you've wondered about Postmaster General Farley's popularity, this Detroit Free Press observation may help explain it: "Jim's the type that can stop in a town between trains and be mistaken for a native son."

Sees Europe as 'Lost Continent'

HERE is an interesting view of the European war and our own relation to it, from the editor of the Daily Journal of New Ulm, Minn. It seems to reflect the sentiment of many people in that region and elsewhere.

"I happen to be a Norwegian," he says, "and I have no use for Hitler or the Nazi movement. There is no essential difference between Naziism, Fascism and Communism.

"Neither can I get very excited about the plight of England. As I recall it, neither England nor France did anything to help the Weimar Republic in Germany when it had a chance to save democratic government over there.

"I have just about come to the conclusion that Europe is the lost continent. I don't think that we are going to accomplish anything by going to war to help either side.

"America has a great mission in this world. We ought to keep the light of liberty and democracy alive in one nation in the world at least. I don't see how we are going to do that if we get into another world war. The dictatorships will be increased, no matter who wins.

"The two great enemies of the democratic form of government are war and debt and, of course, war brings debt. I suppose we will make another fight for 'democracy,' but there will be fewer democratic governments in Europe after this war is over, and the democratic idea may vanish from the entire world.

"I never cease to be amazed to see how closely we are following the pattern of 1916 and '17. We are treading the path to war just as surely now as we did then."

Where Capability Is Required

EXCEPT under the political system of filling public offices, qualifications for doing some particular kind of work in a capable way are ordinarily considered before responsible positions are filled.

Customary procedure in filling the office of city manager under a charter form of municipal government provides an interesting example.

The job of city manager is one that requires special training and experience. This was realized in a recent instance when the man who has successfully served as city manager of Saginaw, Mich., was chosen for larger responsibilities of a similar post in Kansas City. And now the city manager of Muskegon, Mich., has been called to the Saginaw post.

Growth of the manager system of city government has brought about an increasing demand for trained and experienced men to fill positions of this kind.

All Essay Writers Will Benefit

WHILE not all writers of essays in the "Let's Explore Ohio" contest can be winners, the experience gained by each of the youthful contestants will well repay the effort involved.

It has been said by many successful authors that "the way to learn how to write is to write," and school children eligible to compete in this "Let's Explore Ohio" contest (ages from 12 to 15) will find it well worth while to put down on paper their ideas of "The Most Interesting Spot In Ohio," even if they are not one of the two Richland county winners of the 1,000-mile tour of the state which has been planned for the group of young people whose essays are judged best.

With motor trips as common as they have become, many children are privilaged to enjoy travel in their own state, as well as to more distant places, and they should learn, as early as possible, that enjoyment of a trip is increased by advance knowledge of things of interest that can be found at different places.

Basic Materials Will be Needed

AMONG the preparedness needs of the United States is a large supply of basic industrial and war materials not produced in this country. Big stores of tin, rubber, manganese and other things will be required and a number of these are obtainable chiefly from the Dutch East Indies.

According to a Washington writer, American economists figure the need for a store of not less than $800,000,000 worth of these things. The army-and-navy board asked for $200,000,000 to start with, but congress cut this down to $100,000,000, to be spent over a four-year period at the rate of $25,000,000 a year. And so far, only about $13,000,000 has been made available, in two years.

This is about the same situation that existed in the last World war, except that the need is more imperative now.

Meanwhile Holland is overrun by invaders and, in spite of assurances, the situation of those rich and essential East Indies has become perilous.

Sugar's Effect on Teeth

DENTAL researchers in the University of California report that they have succeeded in stopping dental decay in 90 per cent of cases handled, by eliminating "refined sugar" from the diet. This experiment was tried on a large number of California students, to test theories advanced by the University of Michigan dental school. Acid-forming bacteria in the mouth were suspected of causing the decay.

Students, selected from several hundred because their teeth showed excessive decay, were asked to avoid all but "natural" sweets. Saliva tests soon showed, in nearly all the cases, a decrease in acid bacteria and a stoppage of dental decay.

This isn't really a new idea, but the experiment and conclusions are impressive. This generation, however, can't be expected to stop using white sugar, even if convenient substitutes become available. Attempts to substitute old-fashioned brown sugar have nearly always failed.

Sign noted at Kentucky wayside cabin camp: "No locals. Only tourists." may be only another way of saying "Terms, Cash."

Word from a pet show in one of the larger cities brings the surprising revelation that money is sometimes paid for a cat.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Mr. Ogden Nash once wrote a poem about a taxi driver. He was the nicest taxi driver in New York. He always had change for a $5 bill. He always said "Ma'am" to ladies, and "Sir" to men. When his customers asked him not to drive so fast he always said, 'Oh, that's all right; I'll be glad to slow down." He didn't smoke or chew. He never sassed policemen. In fact, he was the best taxi driver in the world. The only trouble was that he never made any money. The money was made by the tough taxi-drivers, who snarled at strangers and shortchanged nice old ladies.

I do not know Mr. Nash personally, but if I ever meet him I am going to introduce him to a party named Joe Bananas. Joe is a bellman at the Hotel New Yorker, which is a highbrow way of saying bellhop. If Joe worked at any other hotel he would be a bellhop. But at the New Yorker that word is discouraged because it is said to be lacking in dignity.

SOMETIMES Joe Bananas is the despair of his fellow bellmen because he refuses to take tips from nice old ladies. "Oh, that's all right, ma'am," says Joe. "I love to carry bags." When Joe refuses to take tips like this, it makes the other bellmen appear callous and grasping.

Joe sometimes refuses to take tips from honeymooners, too. And he never takes tips on Holy days. Joe is Spanish and a good Catholic. His last name isn't really Bananas. People call him that because his last name is practically unpronounceable. He is certainly a valuable man to have in a metropolitan hotel because he speaks all the Latin tongues fluently and understands Greek, Russian and German. He has been a bellhop 25 years and a bellman for ten more years. The 25 years were before he went to the New Yorker.

If you know New York you will remember this hotel is quite a little walk—if you are carrying heavy bags—from the Pennsylvania Railroad station. This is sometimes a distressing business for the other bellmen, because Joe is still shy about accepting tips, even after this long haul. The other day he lugged two heavy valises over to the station and put a nice old gentleman on the train. When he got there the nice old gentleman gave Joe a 50-cent tip. Joe said, "Oh, thank you, sir, and here is 20 cents change. Thirty cents is more than enough for the small service I have been able to render you."

BUT if this is at times just a wee bit trying on his confreres, it at a point that wins many friends for Joe among the customers. Through his long service as a bellman, he has worked up a "clitele" that runs into the thousands. People from all over the United States, when they stop at the New Yorker, asks for Joe Bananas.

This is a fine thing for Joe. It means he seldom has to stand in rotation—that is, in line, and take his turn with the other bellmen. He always is being pulled out of line and sent up to some new arrival who remembers Joe from previous visits. It means that Joe continually is being offered new tips. It is plain to see Joe could easily lay by a nice nest egg if he were commercial in his attitude toward life. But Joe always has the right change in his pocket.

"Oh, no, sir. I couldn't take a quarter. Fifteen cents is more than enough."

Opinion of Hitler Being Revised

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON'S executive officialdom and its legislators generally decidedly have revised their pre-war estimates of Adolf Hitler. They like him no better than they did originally, but they do have to admit that he shows abilities that previously they wholly failed to give him credit for.

Not so long ago his was assessed as essentially a small caliber mentality. Now he's beginning to be referred to as a sure-enough genius—crazy and murderous, but in his fashion, inspired by something or other.

Of course, it's agreed that his total lack of scruples gives him an advantage over civilized statesmanship—and over other totalitarian leaders, too.

For instance, awhile back Benito Mussolini was widely rated as basically far abler than Adolf. He also was cordially hated but he never was pooh-poohed as a Charlie-Chaplin-mustached joke, who wouldn't last long. He always was sized up as dangerous. When he and Adolf got together and presently Adolf began to steal the limelight, comment was mostly to the effect that it must make Benito tired to see that upsart pewee out-publicizing him as a dictator.

Today Adolf's recognized as overwhelmingly the foremost personality—malignant but outstanding. Benito is a mere sideshow.

Relative Sizes of Dogs.

True, Adolf is backed by a much stronger power than Mussolini.

However, expert dope was that while Benito, as a dog, could wag his Italian tail all right, nevertheless the critter wasn't big enough to do much more than snap and snarl, without biting out any very big pieces.

No observer doubted that the German animal was formidable, but critics questioned that Hitler was potent enough to do his tail-wagging effectively. The last few weeks have proved that he can wag like fury.

Comrade Stalin's Russian wolfhound wagging is competent and his dog's a big one, but his biting quality is doubtful.

The Japanese pup remains to be tested. He hasn't given a very good account of himself in China, but he may yet turn out to be pretty scrappy.

The little neutral terriers, left to themselves, can't last long. They're courageous but not sufficiently sizeable to signify.

Belittled Adolf.

Washington's diplomatic and military sentiment at first inclined to the view that Adolf jumped into the pit with too much to chew.

It doesn't underestimate him any more.

The Washingtonian theory is that the Fuehrer would have preferred not to take on his European blitzkrieg until after our coming election, lest he involve Uncle Sam on the Allies' side.

However, finally, he decided that the chance couldn't be stalled off.

On the opposite hand the Allies, presumably figuring that the sooner we get in with 'em the better, from their standpoint, wanted to push the campaign.

Anticipating this, shall we say? —Adolf rushed 'em to the gun.

He didn't want to start it first, but he had to, and he had the nerve.

No Bluffer.

In short, the world seems to have interpreted the Fuehrer as a bluffer. Obviously he's not. He "calls."

And he's been getting away with it to date.

Washington diplomacy, candidly, is getting sick of the Allies' handling of the war. It thinks it's inexcusably bungling — that the Allies will get licked, and then that we'll have a heck of a situation on our own hands.

At the same time, we don't want to get into the war.

It's the same way that it was in 1914-1916, only more so.

We don't want to get into the war, and we're increasingly afraid that we will.

Listen, World!

They're Holding the Line!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU hear spectacular things, tragic and sickening things, from the battle lines these days. Magnificent old men, sacrificing their last peace to take the helm again. Young men hurling themselves headlong into the walls of flame. Youngsters, hardly more than apple-cheeked school boys, marching up to the front aglow with hope, to be splintered into blood rags, to be dissolved in the mud of deserted battle fields.

You listen with an endless ache and rebellion. The futility of it all! The insane sacrifice! Where will it end? How can anything good or decent survive this nightmare of hate and greed? Who will fight, and for what, when these are gone?

And suddenly hope flickers strangely in your heart . . . tightens into flame . . . glows steadily. For you remember that there is a fighting division which is not enlisted in any battle roll, a division of fighters which has never been beaten, which has held the line through all the ages!

They do not wear uniforms these other fighters, nor carry guns within their hands . . . nor are they rewarded medals at the end. Untrained, unknown—and nearly always poor—they labor in the kitchens and workshops of the nation, the stores and schools, the farms and factories. The "common people," the "home people"—the mothers, fathers, craftsmen, shopkeepers, manual laborers, seamen—they are the actual "shock troops" of every nation. They "run the race and keep the faith," far behind the smoke and reek of battle.

OBSCURE AS THEY ARE, THEY HOLD THE FRONT LINE TRENCHES OF CIVILIZATION!

Their stubborn, simple minds harbor and safeguard the great ideals of decency for which men have fought since the beginning.

They are the defenders of Truth. The protectors of the old and helpless.

The believers in friendliness, fair play and brotherly love.

And by their homely faith and wholesome chores they render a greater service to the human race than all the bombers and "blitzkriegers."

For a "blitzkrieg" plans to destroy; but these, the kindly toilers in the rear, hope only to perpetuate and preserve life and those generous ideals which serve life.

Often I find my mind overwhelmed by doubt and distress these days. I find myself believing that the fine things have all departed . . . that ruthless brutality and greed have taken over the reins. And then—

I think of the "common people." The clear-eyed, reasoning mothers . . . the kindly, hard-working fathers . . . the laborers who ask so little and give so much in toil and honesty and good cheer. And my mind stops rocking. I realize that the real "fighting line" is safe . . . that nothing can ever destroy it.

Truth may depart from the "high places" . . . Justice may desert the temples of the great . . . but the old ones and the little ones will still sit happily in some kindly kitchen . . . and when the war is over . . . Christ will still break bread across some simple table.

On a Par With Hotels.

The proposal to exact of tourist camps and lodgings a responsibility comparable to that required of hotels meets an evident need.

These establishments, subject to the same abuses as hotel, at present go virtually unregulated. Complaints of immorality and of the use of tourist quarters as criminal hideouts have became increasingly frequent, though less so in Michigan, it should be noted, than elsewhere. There have been complaints also on grounds of safety and sanitation.

That regulation is due, the better class of such enterprises themselves doubtless will agree. It will be no more than good business for them to collaborate in any effort to safeguard their reputations as places decent citizens patronize. Regulation should be directed to that end, and obviously should go no farther and be no more onerous than will contribute practically to its achievement.

A mob is the scum that rises upmost when the nation boils.—Dryden.

Hints on Etiquette.

If you have little nervous habits like pulling your girdle, when you rise from a chair, adjusting your shoulder straps, straightening your waistband, or, if a man, pulling up your trousers, try to correct them. Such habits are the result of self-consciousness and lack of poise and detract from your personality.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. Goethe, the German poet.
2. In the old state capitol at Frankfort, which was built in 1829.
3. From the term "rookery," which, in English military slang refers to quarters in the barracks occupied by subalterns.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—To understand the present tactics of Germany you have to go back to a remark attributed to Hitler before the war really got serious:

"If the war lasts four years I would lose 4,000,000 men. It is better to lose 3,000,000 men in three months."

In other words, the present German casualties have been terrific, considerably worse than the French. But Hitler has been willing to lose men. He is determined to push the war to a quick finish this summer, no matter how long and tragic may be the stream of coffins going back from the front.

Hitler has ample supplies to last through the summer, but not beyond. So if the war drags past the autumn, Germany is lost.

Another thing you have to remember about the Germans, is that although they have been building up their war machine for seven years, they have been working on war strategy even longer—for twenty years. Ever since the end of the last war they have been brooding on their mistakes of 1914-1917 and figuring on how to avoid them this time.

The big mistake made in the battle of the Marne, in 1914, was that General von Kluck waited for his artillery to catch up with his infantry. The artillery was horse drawn. This gave General Joffre time to rush his taxicab army from Paris. Now, however, the German artillery is mechanized, most of it in tanks and abreast or in advance of the infantry.

Nazi Mechanization.

COMPARED man for man, the French troops are better soldiers than the Germans, superbly trained, have excellent morale. But they have not the same material as the Germans, particularly tanks, airplanes mechanization.

In tanks the French appeared to be superior to Germany when the war began last September. They brought into play a new super-tank, as big as a locomotive, which could come up alongside German pillboxes without being bothered by machine-gun fire.

But the Germans have now gone much further. They have heavier tanks than the French and many more of them. Apparently, they learned a lesson from the French tank in September, and started the German industrial machine turning out hundreds of them all last winter.

As a result, the Germans have been advancing with batteries of tanks so thickly armored that it takes heavy artillery to stop them.

Preceding the tanks, Nazi airplanes rout French reinforcements and bomb truck trains off the highways.

Never before has the world seen such modern mechanization. It has completely upset the strategy of warfare. In the old days, a valley was an excellent channel through which troops could advance. But today, an airplane sweeps up a valley, catching the enemy in a pocket, and bombs or machine guns them in every direction.

200 Miles a Day.

WHEN President Roosevelt informed congress that modern armies now advanced at the rate of 200 miles a day, he referred to the Nazi push through Holland and part of Belgium. That push illustrates the high degree of Nazi mechanization. They sent airplanes ahead instead of the cavalry of old. Then come Nazi supertanks. Then armored cars, followed by armored trucks filled with troops. Thus, the entire German army moves at the rate of 200 miles a day instead of at the snail-like pace of the last war when twelve miles daily was excellent speed for the infantry.

It was only two years ago that the U. S. Chief of Staff referred to the "foot soldier" as the backbone of the American army.

Two other factors beside mechanization have been important in Nazi success. One has been a new type of high explosive which seems able to crack the steel and cement fortifications of the Maginot Line more than anything the Allies have perfected.

The other is the Hitler psychology of invincibility which has terrorized smaller countries. For instance, U. S. army intelligence has no idea as yet whether Hitler has a secret new weapon or not, as boasted in Berlin.

But this doesn't make any difference. The mere report of the weapon has been effective. Rumors about a nerve-gas have spread terror to all the smaller countries. The Baikans which a few days ago were ready to fight, now look like a push-over. They figure that Hitler is invincible, almost super-natural.

French Generals.

THERE have been two schools of thought inside the French army regarding the defense of the Republic. One was the strategy used during the World war—that the best defense was to attack despite heavy loss of life.

The other school was developed after the war by General Gamelin—namely, that the best defense was in tremendous fortresses. This strategy erected the Maginot Line, and was behind the Gamelin policy of conserving manpower, waiting for the enemy to attack, figuring that France could sit out the war.

Leaders of the old theory, that the best defense is to counter-attack, are the new commander-in-chief, General Weygand, and General Georges, the French chief-of-staff. The latter was shot through the lungs when King Alexander of Jugoslavia was assassinated, and for many months was given up as unable to recover. He is now one of the most potent generals in France. It was generally expected that Gamelin, now getting old, would have stepped aside some time ago in favor of General Georges.

Both Georges and Weygand were the star officers of Marshal Foch in the last war. Weygand is dynamic, restless, has been worried over lack of French activity. Twice he flew to Paris from Syria, was reported to have offered his resignation twice in disgust at French dalliance in the Near East.

Merry-Go-Round.

COST of the now deflated Garner boom for president ran into big figures, according to Mrs. Clara Driscoll, Texas Democratic national committeewoman. She has told friends that the total was $165,000. . . . The profit colum of the government-owned Inland Waterways Corporation is beginning to look up under Chester Thompson, new head of the agency. March report shows a $45,000 profit as compared to a $51,309 loss for the same month in 1939. . . . Thompson has put an end to previous labor difficulties by signing agreements with various unions.

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I VISITED a rural home just after lunch time. The farmer was still in the field. He finished the last two rows of planting corn and when he raised the shoes that put the planter out of gear, the horses hurried toward the open gate.

"Those rows are pretty straight," I greeted him.

"My father used to say," he smiled, "that more corn grows on a crooked row than on a straight one. I claim more weeds do, too."

He drove to the barn, unhitched, and let the horses go to the watering trough. He placed corn and oats in each feed box and forked a generous portion of hay into the manger. The animals munched their grain. I could hear the molars grind the feed and see the little bulge go down each animal's lower neck when it swallowed.

"Mom rang the bell some time ago," the farmer said, brushing off his shoes on a patch of thick turf. "I was so near done, though, that I wanted to finish. I guess she understood."

Five children, ranging from three to twelve played on the lawn. "Dinner was ready long ago, Dad," said one little boy. "We were so hungry that we almost didn't wait."

The farmer washed his grimy hands and face beside the pump, and wiped upon a roller towel hung near by. His good wife opened the summer kitchen door and showed an oilcloth covered table, laid. The family sat down. His wife graciously invited me to join them, but I had already had lunch.

The meal was not elaborate. A large dish of boiled potatoes, a pat of freshly churned butter and a plate piled with homemade bread. A large pitcher of milk stood at the end.

They bowed their heads. The man said grace. He thanked God for the plentifulness of the fare. He asked protection and guidance for himself and for his precious children. The humility and sincerity this tiller of the soil expressed left no doubt in my mind that God had heard.

The farm where this man lives is none too good. The house needs repair, the land has a mortgage on it; they have no car. What they do have is "that good part that shall not be taken away from them." So long, I thought, as such reverence exists in so many rural homes, America is a good place to be.

GERMANS SPEED DRIVE TO REACH CHANNEL PORTS

Nazis Renew Push, Aiming at Dover Straits, Closest Point to England.

imperilled British forces fighting with their backs to the coast.

Blazes started by Nazi air bombs also swept through the railroad stations at Compeigne and Creil, on the line from St. Quentin to Paris. Creil is about 25 miles north and Compeigne about 40 miles northwest of Paris.

Both are beyond Soissons where, it was reported, the Nazis may be applying pincer tactics by surrounding the city without occupying it.

Authorized sources indicated that the swift-charging Nazi combat units were driving to close a pocket around between 500,000 and 1,000,000 Allied soldiers before undertaking the next move—presumably direct action against England.

A jubilant Nazi press played upon the theme that the Germans had carried the blitzkrieg to England's door yesterday by driving advance columns past Arras and Amiens to the town of Abbeville, near the mouth of the Somme river only 12 miles from the English channel proper.

But prior to any direct action against England, authoritative spokesmen said, the Germans must first close the deep sack they have created with the Belgian towns of Charleroi and Mons and the French town of Maubeuge at the bottom and opening westward toward the channel.

As to what might befall the entrapped enemy, it was pointed out that the German pincer strategy already had resulted in crushing the ninth French army which, according to the high command, "is about to be dissolved," with its newly-appointed commander, General Giraud, and his staff already fallen into German hands.

The German official news agency, DNB, in an economic survey asserted today that France already had lost 25 per cent of her pig iron production through German occupation of the northern parts of the country.

Steel imports by France from Luxembourg have been eliminated and airplane deliveries from the Netherlands have been stopped.

French industry, it was stated, has been hit severely by the loss of 6,000,000 tons of coal which previously came from Belgium and the Netherlands

Hitler Prepares for 'Battle of Century.'

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(By International News Service)

WITH THE GERMAN ARMIES ON THE WESTERN FRONT—Chancellor Hitler planned today to hasten the decision of the war on the continent with a "battle of the century."

The Fuehrer, it was learned, already has given General Walter Von Reichenau and his other commanders orders to make every preparation to challenge the Allies to a decisive struggle at the first opportunity.

I am able to reveal this on the basis of permissable information available here.

The Germans are hoping to engineer the "Waterloo" of the French army and thereby force France to abdicate as a mighty continental power once and for all.

Paralysis of France as England's partner by means of a mighty blow is envisioned.

Behind the front I noticed during the past 24 hours that all responsible German authorities, from Hitler down, are focusing all their hopes on a major battle.

New German army corps are pouring through Belgium by every open road, and it is claimed by German authorities that the Allies scarcely have tested as yet the real striking power of the German army.

General Reichenau, who has been entrusted by Hitler with carrying out the sweep toward the channel ports, is calm and self-assured over the outcome.

"The main armies, contrary to expectations, did not come to a pitched battle on the Dyle river in Belgium," he said.

"But I believe that appointment, of General Maxime Weygand as Allied commander-in-chief is sure to bring us the hardest fight yet.

"We took the breath of the Allies away by upsetting all their conventional military plans, by initiating our 'blitz' tactics in their territory and giving the foe no opportunity to concentrate his forces and compel us to adopt the trench warfare of 1917.

This war is a modernized version of the old-style wars above ground."

Asserting the coming battle will be of historic importance to the world, Reichenau added:

"Events as they are now moving indicate a great, decisive battle must come. I stopped at Waterloo field a couple of days ago and was conscious of the fact that a world decision fell there within eight hours.

"The coming battle of centuries also will bring a world decision. We are getting ready for it and want to make sure that we will come out victorious."

Reichenau admitted that he was mystified by the actions of the British air force. Save for some night bombings, he contended, the British are not carrying out daily raids against German troop movements on open roads.

"I have driven around the front about 150 miles a day," he said, "and yet I haven't seen or heard of a single Allied air raid.

"Perhaps the English are holding their main air force back for their own reasons. No doubt this is due in part to the efficiency of our ground defenses. And probably our planes and men are better.

"The same holds true for tanks. Our tanks have repeatedly bested the enemy's in pitched battles which resembled the clashes of the old armored knights on horseback.

"I say it is a matter of guts in men backed by the best fighting equipment."

Absence of the Allied air force also was noticeable to me at every point where I watched artillery fire. The German barrages were directed by observation planes overhead, while at no point have I yet seen Allied observation planes giving similar signals.

CAPITAL-LABOR ASKED TO HELP

Roosevelt Opposes Jettison of Social Legislation In Defense Plans.

refugee-choked roads in France were being swept by the machine guns of swooping enemy warplanes.

On Capitol Hill, the senate pressed toward a vote on the record-breaking peacetime army bill of $1,820,841,000. The measure embodies all appropriations recommended by Mr. Roosevelt for the land forces in his special defense message a week ago.

Threats to speedy passage — probably today - evaporated when it became known that the Republicans had decided not to fight any portion of the legislation.

The only section with which several Republicans specifically have taken issue would place $128,000,000 at the president's disposal for emergency spending on defense matters. Styling this a "blank check," a few of the minority senators openly have avowed intention to vote against it.

After another day of intensified activities on most governmental fronts, President Roosevelt reviewed crystallizing defense problems at his press conference yesterday.

There were two good rules to pursue, he said, in the work to be done.

First, he said, he did not want to see a single millionaire created out of the world misfortune. He coupled this expression with the statement that he approved of industry's making a reasonable profit.

Turning to labor, he said it should not—and he was confident that it would not—attempt to take advantage of the conditions in defense industries to strike for greater wages or privileges not enjoyed by other workers.

He added that the government in no way proposed to weaken the social legislation of the last several years. In this connection, he disclosed that in pending defense measures he had advised against a proposal to suspend the Walsh-Healy act, which prescribes minimum labor standards for government contracts. The proposal accordingly was dropped, congressional leaders said.

The house military committee unanimously approved a bill to abolish the "ceiling" on the army air corps' strength. The army had asked that the present legal limit of 6,000 be increased to 10,000, but the committee discarded any restriction.

Measures were introduced simultaneously in both houses to authorize a force of 10,000 planes, manned by 16,000 pilots.

Additional shifts were ordered to work in all navy's shipyards to speed warship building.

Precautions against "fifth column sabotage" likewise were written into a pending bill, permitting the navy to oust civilian workers suspected of subversive activity or intent, no matter what their civil service status.

Among numerous defense requests to congress was one from both senate and house naval committees seeking authorization for 20 naval air bases ringing the United States.

The affair was a dessert-bridge, and the dessert course was served at small tables lighted with pink and white tapers and decorated with pink and white apopintments. Bridge was the diversion, with prizes going to Mss Teeter and Miss Betty Fisher.

During the evening, the honoree received a letter containing a poem which directed her to look in a mirror, where another poem revealed the hiding place of the shower gifts from the guests.

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

IF YOU'RE a busy business girl, you're probably beginning to make plans for a practical and attractive summer wardrobe. . . . A fashion "must" of this season is the gingham or seersucker suit—always crisp and cool looking, these outfits are easy to keep fresh because they launder so well. . . . One of the cutest suits I saw while shopping yesterday was made from black and white checked gingham—the dress was fashioned with a square neck and knife-pleated skirt. . . . The matching fitted jacket had a belted and bloused back. . . . Blue and gray striped seersucker was featured in another suit—the striped skirt and jacket are combined with a plain blue blouse. . . . A two-piece frock of blue and white check is gay with a revered collar and white pearl buttons on a double-breasted waist. . . . Smoketone plaids are also good for summer, and one of the local shops is showing a fitted dress in shades of orange and blue—with a double-breasted bodice, full skirt and set-in belt of the same material.

Marianne

WITH warm days an actuality, play suits and slack outfits are fast becoming a necessity for those outdoor sports, picnics and hikes. . . . Really smart in play suits are those of silk jersey—the most attractive one I've seen combines rose-coral and brown. . . . A one-piece play suit with set-in belt was made shirtwaist style with pleated shorts, while the shutter-pleated skirt was brown and rose-coral striped. . . . Then there are pique, rayon and seersucker play outfits in white, prints and stripes—the latter two in a wide range of colors. . . . Some skirts are gathered on shirred waistbands, while others button or close with zippers down the front, back or side.

* * *

This summer's slack suits are different from their predecessors, too. . . . The new pajama-type ones are made of dotted silk crepe in a variety of shades, and they have full wrist-length sleeves and belted backs. . . . A practical idea in gabardine is an outfit which features a rose blouse with harmonizing plaid front, rose skirt and rose slacks. . . . A smart jersey slack suit is gay with gray trousers and flame red blouse, while the more practical browns and tans are as popular as ever.

* * *

IT LOOKS much as though men's play suits will be as popular again this summer. . . . The slacks are twin pleated and the shirts can be worn inside or outside, and to be stylish this season, the two must match. . . . The materials are tropical worsteds, silk gabardines, rayon and cotton combinations, cotton shantungs, cotton and spun rayons, while the colors are pongee tan, blue, green, luggage and mocha. . . . If and when a tie is worn, it should be an ascot with small foulard patterns or sports figures, while heavy lisle and cotton ankle socks are to be worn with sport shoes.

* * *

If you're going to be working in the garden or lolling on the beach this summer, you'll find one of those new folding sun hats to be a life saver for your complexion, and a safeguard against a peeling nose. . . . Of bright colored percale, these wide brimmed hats fold up into small, flat packages which are very easy to carry around.

* * *

AND speaking of folding things, you'll be delighted with those new knitting and market bags of gaily colored crash and cretonne—they have little wooden legs which make it easy to set them down while you're sewing, knitting or shopping, and these legs collapse when you carry them.

* * *

THE NEWEST and coolest things in summer nightwear are dainty batiste gown ensembles, which have a fitted gown topped by a negligee—there are a variety of prints, colors and trimmings, so I be sure to find just the thing you want.

* * *

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

Strict Parents At Fault

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

When I get letters from girls telling me that their parents are so strict that they have to lie and sneak about keeping dates, I wish heartily these parents were at hand when such letters are opened.

And it is a mystery to me why parents old enough to have adolescent daughters are so inexperienced as not to realize that forbidding a harmless date only makes it seem more fascinating. The quickest recipe for turning a boy friend into a Prince Charming is to tell your daughter that under no circumstances must she ever see him again.

Unfortunately, strict parents seldom take into account that perverse streak in human nature which makes people, especially young people, take the bit in their teeth and rebel against too many "Thou shalt nots."

Taking human nature into account, the sensible parent determines to be wise before being strict. If girls want to see friends at home, be thankful. A good many parents are content to see their daughters in parked automobiles. Even if the party your daughter wants to give is a nuisance, please enter into the spirit of it, help make it a success

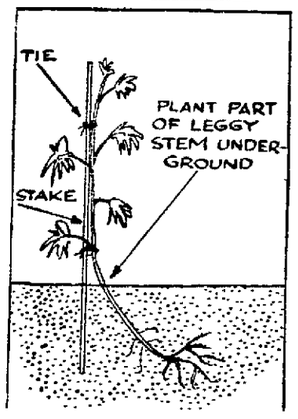
Self-supporting girls often write me that the strict discipline at home is not relaxed, even when they pay board or turn over their entire pay envelopes. No matter how much the money may be needed to help out, the arrangement doesn't strike me as being quite fair.

Instead of sending missions to foreign lands, I've often wondered why churches do not make some arrangements for social life on the part of girls who find it impossible, or next to impossible, to see their friends at home. Certainly no normal parent wishes to deprive a girl of her birthright of youth.

Strict parents who have seen so much of the seamy side of life think to shield their daughters from unhappiness by depriving them of opportunities of marriage. That is a great mistake, my dear strict parents.

Garden Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY



REMAKING LEGGY TOMATO PLANTS

If properly planted a leggy tomato plant may prove to be the Cinderella of the vegetable garden.

In the first place, leggy tomato plants should be deep-planted, with a part of the stem placed underground as shown in today's Garden-Graph. Secondly, such plants must also be staked, as illustrated, to prevent their becoming stoop-shouldered. When planted in this manner leggy seedlings can be practically remade for new roots will quickly form along the portion of the stem which has been planted underground. The nourishment supplied by these additional roots will soon transform the spindly plant into a sturdy, upstanding specimen.

It should also be remembered that fertilizers used on tomato plants should be properly balanced, for application of too much nitrogen will produce excessive leaf growth in place of fruit.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, May 23.

Swift - stirring events, with things moving under excitement and high tempo, are forecast from this day's astral operations. Probably new ventures of major importance, requiring not only much skill and practical creative ability but as well as fine initiative and enterprise are to the fore. These may be sure of attracting the generous support of those in position and authority to promote and give all needed means for launching and expanding. But in all transactions leave no loophole for craft, duplicity or hazardous entanglements.

Those whose birthday it is are justified in anticipating a year of definite progress and expansion in new directions, with every prospect of important propositions and projects of a practical nature meeting the approval and financial backing of influential personages. Bold initiative and sound constructive ability will be supported and generously, but in all dealings be wary as to treachery, fraud or subtle entanglements, even in high places.

A child born on this day should have much practical talent and creative ability as well as high ambitions. Its enthusiasm, generous and expansive nature, will win it success and much personal popularity with important persons.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

MY ANSWER to Philip Veritzen's question was a single word, "Yes."

I knew that there would be no delay in the return of the players to the library.

I braced myself accordingly for the ordeal. That Mary was pulling her own will and nerves into shape, I knew by her heightened color, her too-brilliant eyes, and by the fingers clenched into her palms.

I shall always believe Nancy Carew to be clairvoyant, after that day of rehearsal. I wanted so much to slip Mary some word of gesture of encouragement, but with Philip Veritzen's keen eyes watching both of us, I dared not make the slightest gesture, although Mary stood very near me.

I looked up to see Nancy Carew's eyes, old, yet still brilliant and exceedingly shrewd, fitted upon me. And suddenly, as if answering a question, she made a gesture toward Mary, so infinitesimal that Philip Veritzen could not possibly have seen it, and then, walking toward the great producer, she placed herself so that he would have to turn away from us if he faced her.

"Phil!" she said, laying her hand upon his arm, "do you know of what all this reminds me?"

"No," he said courteously, smiling down at her, but I never did learn what the rest of that planned colloquy was, for the minute Philip Veritzen turned his eyes away, I grasped Mary's arm.

"Courage darling!" I whispered. "You're going to win out. I feel it! But you mustn't falter an instant. It's all up to you now."

She slid up her hand and gripped mine tensely.

"Thank you, darling," she said. "And don't worry! The little chin is up"—she thrust her beautifully rounded one into the air—"ready to take it."

"Look out!" I whispered, dropping her hand. "He's showing signs of turning this way. Good hunting!"

The library door opened and Lillian ushered in the rest of the cast. But in the midst of their exclamations and settling into their places, she found an opportunity to speak to me "prison fashion" from the side of her mouth.

"We're going to have an unseen audience at this rehearsal," she said.

Changes Good Beauty Tonic

By MME QUI VIVE

To realize that the girls are marching along the beauty road, and marching fast, one has but to look a told time photographs of Greta Garbo, Gloria Swanson, Joan Crawford and other stars of the movie firmament. Fashions may be crazy, but they're better than they were. Certainly coiffures have made headway—and that's no joke. Remember when hair was pulled down over the forehead and lopped over the ears? All hair and no face.

One must have an open mind, be ready to accept changes which, as far as your beauty reporter can observe, have all been for the better. Women stay young longer, stave off wrinkles until the last ditch. Because they are active, they forget to count birthdays. No getting up on the shelf these days. Too much to see, learn, talk about and do. Grand.

A new coiffure, even if it does make you look strange, is no killing matter. It isn't there for life. If it does not conform to your little heart's desire, you pull it down and tear it apart. But the old school gal can't bear to see it started. She looks this year as she did last and no doubt will look the same years hence as far as hairdress and clothes are concerned.

Changing fashions are fun. They are stimulating They make a woman forget a lot of things she doesn't like to remember. Some beauty fads are slightly insane, but what of it? Men don't like red nail polish, but who cares? They still like the girls who use it. Can't worry through life without their companionship.

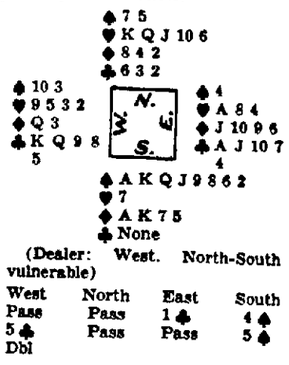
"The Authority on Authorities"

LOW CARDS PRICELESS

It is natural to consider low cards as more or less trash. Yet they may be as valuable to us as any in the deck. When you are hard put to it to find an entry from your hand into the dummy, or vice versa, it will always pay to inspect the little fellows closely. The relative rank of the very smallest cards may furnish the key to success in a contract apparently unmakeable.



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	4 ♠
5 ♣	Pass	Pass	5 ♠
Dbl

West led the club K at both tables of a duplicate where the bidding went as shown. In one case South ruffed it, ran several trumps and expected the diamonds to be divided on a basis of three in each opponent's hand, so that he would lose only one diamond and one heart. Played this way, he had to lose two diamonds in addition to a heart, so was beaten.

At the other table the declarer counted that only three trumps were out. He therefore had a sure entry to the dummy in trumps. So he ruffed the opener high and led a heart to the K and A. East returned a diamond to the A. Then came the spade 2. West took this, and the rest of the tricks were declarer's, with the spade 6 to the 7 as an entry to run the hearts for two diamond discards. If West had ducked the spade 2, the 5 would have won; two diamonds would have been tossed on hearts and an overtrick would have been made.

ON HONOR ROLL

GALION—Alva Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Taylor of the Bloominggrove road, was one of 22 chosen from the Freshman Y. M. C. A. for the roll of honor at Ohio State university, according to announcement received here.

Taylor was recently initiated into membership of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity.

CIRCLE ELECTS

ASHLAND—Mrs. Frank LeFever was named captain of the Cleveland avenue circle of the Methodist church here, at a meeting held at the home of Mrs. Raymond Highman of East Ninth street.

Other officers named at the meeting include, assistant captain, Mrs. R. J. McWilliams; secretary, Mrs. D. G. Brubaker; treasurer, Mrs. George Taylor; lieutenant, Mrs. C. W. Davies, Miss Margaret Holzer' Mrs. Virgil Dolby and Mrs. J. M. Plank.

RELIEF CUT

BUCYRUS—Limitation of present relief funds has made necessary the removal of all single male employables from relief rolls, R. L. Hertzer' county relief director, announced today.

The new ruling becomes effective June 1. A total of 58 persons will be affected by the removal including 27 in Galion, 17 in Bucyrus, and 14 in other sections of the county.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

If South takes the third club trick in the dummy, wins the heart finesse, then leads spades, how can West tell when to play his ace?

Children Sending Contributions to National Defense

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Contributions of bills, coins, money orders and checks have started pouring into the White House for use in building up the national defense

Stephen Early, presidential press secretary, also reported that thousands of telegrams and letters have been received since President Roosevelt presented his defense message to congress Thursday. Only 65 of those by "actual count," Early said, opposed the program.

Most of the 65, he added were similar in wording, bore foreign names and came from one city which he refused to identify

Early said many of the contributions came from school children and all were being turned over to the treasury for a ruling on whether the government can accept them.

The practice previously has been to return such gifts. This was done in one case, it was said, by Navy Secretary Edison to whom was referred a letter from Juanita Graham, 13-year-old, Houston, Tex., school girl who sent $1 to "help buy a battleship."

Back in 1916 another 13-year old, Marjorie Sterrett, sent a dime to a New York newspaper to go toward a battleship The newspaper used the donation to start a drive, raised more than $20,000 and got a special law enacted to permit the navy to receive it Known as the Marjorie Sterrett fund," the income has been used for prizes to battlecrews in efficiency tests

American 75 Millimeter Gun Adapted as Anti-Tank Weapon

WASHINGTON -- (AP) — The United States army for years has been adapting its 75 millimeter field guns for use as an anti-tank weapon, in the same manner that the French army is using it against powerful German tanks.

Since the World war the 75, designed by the French more than four decades ago, has been the standard light field piece of American artillery

More than 3,500 are in service or in reserve now, 500 or more have been adapted for use against tanks, and the administration's vast new arms program includes funds to make suitable alterations in 900 or so others.

American artillery and ordnance officers have repeatedly told congress that the basic design of the 75 has never been improved.

The United States, however, has streamlined the ammunition, increased the range, improved the sight, attached motor wheels so the gun can be towed at high speed by motor trucks, and has made other changes to add flexibility. But the barrel and recoil mechanism are the same as first developed in France before the turn of the century.

The 75 is rated an extremely accurate, fast firing weapon. Its original effective range of about 8,000 yards has been lengthened by the American changes to 12,000. Shells are loaded by hand, and the gun can be fired as fast one shot every three seconds, although over long periods the normal rate is two shots a minute to prevent overheating.

Until the World war the United States army used a three-inch gun, but switched to the French 75 because it could be procured quickly for the American expeditionary force. The difference in calibre is slight.

The changes to permit using the gun effectively against tanks involve chiefly altering the traverse so that the aim can be changed quickly without shifting the entire carriage. In this manner repeated shots can be fired against fast-moving tanks or other vehicles.

Artillery officials said they did not know whether France had made changes other than altering the gun from a horse-drawn to a motor-drawn [illegible]

For use against tanks with armour two [illegible] United States army recently has standardized a 38 millimeter gun which weighs only 900 pounds and may rapidly be shifted around a battlefield by manpower.

FREE LUNCH

Employes Raid Ice Box on This Company's Time.

CLEVELAND—(UP)—George A Maurath, president of Maurath, Inc., believes his workers should feel at home while they are at the plant.

The workers, making arc welding rods and equipment, work to radio music. When they come to work they get a free cup of coffee from a percolator which is always steaming.

Lunch is always at the expense of the management. So is supper if they have to work overtime. If an employe wants a "snack" sometime during the day he goes to the icebox and makes a sandwich. The company also does his laundry work free.

Good business or slack, no one gets laid off and, when the business warrants it, bonuses are paid.

Maurath, a former newspaper reporter, started his business in 1928 with 1,600 square feet of space, today he has two small plants with a total 35,000 square feet.

Of the total area of Iceland, six-sevenths is unproductive.
